

British Imperial Staff Shaken Up; More Active Policy Seen

Younger Men Are Elevated To Key Places

General Brooke, Specialist in Mechanization, New Chief.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 19.—The British war office announced early today that General Sir Alan Brooke will replace General Sir John Dill as chief of the imperial general staff on December 25. Accompanying shifts tended to place younger men in key military positions.

London's morning papers displayed the news of the shakeup above everything else, welcoming it and predicting it would prove popular with younger men in the army.

"Fighting Days Here Again." The News Chronicle said the changes "may well lead to a more forward-looking policy matching the opportunities of the hour." (The shakeup was described, too, as a "sign that fighting days have come again," International News Service said.)

The appointment of General Brooke brings to the top job in Britain's armies a specialist in military mechanization, gunnery and anti-aircraft defense. He already has earned the title of "Wizard" from his fellow soldiers. Brooke, 58 years old, has been commander in chief of the home forces since July 10, 1940. He became commander of the first British mobile division in 1937 and was first general officer commanding the anti-aircraft command in March, 1939.

Dill Retiring at 60. General Dill, who is relinquishing the imperial general staff command at the age of 60, was appointed field marshal and governor-designate of Bombay, to take office when the term of Sir Roger Lumley expires.

Informed sources said 60 was the normal army retirement age "unless a man possesses particular technical qualifications."

General Dill succeeded General Sir Edmund Ironside as chief of the imperial general staff May 26, 1940, during the battle of France. Other appointments were: Lieutenant General B. C. T. Paget, 54, to succeed Brooke as chief of the home forces; Lieutenant General Sir Henry R. Pownall, 53, vice chief of the general staff, "selected for a special appointment," which was not disclosed.

Vice Chief Only 45. Major General A. E. Nye, 45, who came from the ranks in the World War, to succeed Pownall as vice chief.

Lieutenant General B. L. Montgomery, 54, to succeed Paget as general officer, commanding the southeastern command.

General Dill issued a statement saying he had "always been anxious" to see younger men rise in the Army and that this "can only happen if older men give way to them." He said he left the service "with the deepest regret, but I'm glad to say with no bitterness."

General Brooke, member of a distinguished Northern Ireland family of soldiers known as "the fighting Brookes," is a steady-eyed, dark-mustached man, who won the D. S. O. in the World War and was commended for brilliant direction of the Second British Corps against the Germans in the Low Countries in May, 1940.

Welcomed Invasion Threat. As commander of the home forces he welcomed the threat of invasion last year, saying it would afford him the opportunity of "throwing the Nazis back into the sea."

He is credited with invention of the barrage map for direction of artillery fire. Paget, who becomes primarily responsible for Britain's home defenses, commanded British forces in central Norway and was praised in the house of commons for a skillful withdrawal.

Nye, who came up the hard way as a common soldier, was elevated to a general only a little over a year ago. The Daily Mail

Young Georgian Plays Role Of 'Scarlet Pimpernel' in War

LONDON, Wednesday, Nov. 19.—An American "Scarlet Pimpernel" soon will be fighting Adolf Hitler in the RAF after two attempts to join in foreign anti-Axis armies.

He is Charles Ferney Fawcett, 22, of Wales, Ga., training to be an RAF pilot after two adventurous years on the European continent during which he aided a group of wounded British to escape back to Britain by means reminiscent of the exploits of the fictionalized hero of the French revolution.

An air ministry announcement today said Fawcett was an art student in Paris when the Germans invaded Poland. Fawcett beat the Germans to Warsaw, but the Poles turned down his request for enlistment in the army because of his United States citizenship. Succeeding efforts to join the French foreign legion or French air force were similarly balked and Fawcett joined an ambulance unit, the ministry said. He was in Paris when the French collapsed. With some friends he borrowed an ambulance to sneak a load of wounded British soldiers away from a hospital in the path of the German advance. When the ambulance ran out of gasoline Fawcett disguised the wounded men in French uniforms and got them to Marseille on a freight train. There he hid them until they were sufficiently recuperated to be moved one by one to England. He followed the last one to Britain and enlisted in the RAF.

Utah Flyer, 21, Named Eagle Squad Leader

LONDON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A 21-year-old American flight lieutenant, Chesley Gordon Peterson, of Santaquin, Utah, has been named commander leader of the Eagle squadron, American flying unit in the RAF. Peterson would be the first American to lead the Eagles. The last leader, Thomas Meares, of Briton, was killed in a collision. A graduate of Brigham Young University at Provo, Utah, Peterson has been in England for about 12 months. On October 9 he was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, his citation reading: "This American pilot has led his flight during the past three months. He has taken part in 42 operational sorties and has destroyed two and damaged one enemy aircraft."

FIRST PICTURE OF ODENWALD CAPTURE—This official Navy picture, taken from the boat of the U. S. S. Omaha boarding party, shows the German motorship Odenwald, which attempted to run the British blockade under the U. S. flag, plainly flying in the breeze. Disguised as the "Willmott," of Philadelphia, the vessel was saved from a scuttling attempt on the part of its crew and taken to Puerto Rico for salvage proceedings. The Stars and Stripes also were printed on the sides. (Story on Page 6.)

Three Floggers Win Governor's 'Sympathy'; Hearing Is Called

Reds Are Reported Escaping Over Kerch Strait to Caucasus

Germans Launch New Drive Toward Rostov Gateway, Pursue Retreating Russians in Crimea.

By The Associated Press.

The Red armies of Soviet Russia reported early today they were pressing the German invaders steadily back west and northwest of Moscow but acknowledged a withdrawal in the Crimea and in the Caucasus.

The scenes of Russian successes, as broadcast by the Moscow radio, were around Volokolamsk, 65 miles northwest of the capital and Mzhaisk, 57 miles west.

Tremendous German pressure in the south and a Russian withdrawal toward the Caucasus on the Kerch peninsula of the Crimea were admitted, dovetailing with British information that the Nazi command was striving with all available strength to strike into the oil-rich Caucasus by both those routes.

Hitler's new field operation, as reported in British dispatches from the alternate Russian capital of Kuibyshev, was beating slowly forward east of Orel in a sector about 200 miles below Moscow and from the vicinity of Kursk, still farther south.

The master scheme, it thus appeared, was to isolate Rostov from central Russia with the hope of preventing heavy reinforcement of the southern Red positions before the German air arm has full opportunity to concentrate the last ounce of its power upon both Rostov itself and over the Kerch strait below.

The Russians acknowledged early today that six German divisions, although "at a cost of colossal losses," had breached the Red defenses west of Kerch itself, capture of which the Nazis claimed on Monday, and the Soviet informant added:

"The enemy continues his offensive, and Soviet units are slowly retreating, offering stubborn resistance. Both sides are suffering heavy losses."

All this apparently referred to action of some time past. The British radio intimated as much in a broadcast saying that Russian troops in the Kerch area had been "safely evacuated to the Caucasus, along with their complete equipment and war material."

A British authority declared the German air arm was far from what it had been and would get at the Kerch strait and Rostov its first opportunity in some time of striking with numerical superiority in the sort of relatively confined areas where it had made its greatest reputation.

He added, in fact, that only in such limited though intense operations was Hitler's air force now capable of operations of high effect. It was too capped by the Red air force, reinforced with British- and American-made planes, to hold its former place in widely extended offensives, he added.

Berlin's claims, aside from the assertion a turn in the weather made it possible to set the whole German line in motion again, were confined principally to relatively minor actions on the Leningrad and Moscow fronts. It was declared that German artillery bombardments had forced the Russians to evacuate the southern part of Leningrad, but no German effort to occupy that part was mentioned.

'Once in a Thing Like That Myself,' Executive Announces.

Governor Talmadge declared yesterday he "sympathized" with three convicted floggers who participated in the East Point Ku Klux Klan whippings and announced he would consider clemency for the trio at a hearing next Tuesday. He added: "I was in a thing like that one time myself, but I got mine out in the daytime."

Attorneys for Dan Eidson presented to the Governor an application for parole which had been turned down by the State Prison and Parole Commission.

After inquiring into the case, the Governor learned from Attorney H. A. Allen that Walter Forster and W. T. Walton began serving their sentences at the same time Eidson went to the gang and pointed out that one hearing would suffice. As he put it, the "same dose" would do for all.

"The trouble with those fellows was that they had good motives, but went about them in the wrong way," the Governor said. "I can sympathize with them."

"They thought they were doing right, but they just went a little crazy. I was in a thing like that one time myself, but I got mine out in the daytime," the Governor added.

Present when the Governor stated his position were Eidson's pretty young wife and baby and his parents. When the Governor called in a minister who was appearing in Eidson's behalf, the mother quickly broke into tears.

"How many preachers have you got to speak for these men?" the Governor asked Attorney Allen. Allen's reply:

"Well, get them all up here next Tuesday, and we'll wind this thing up," the Governor ordered.

The floggers were found guilty of taking persons whom they

F. D. R. Rebukes Lewis But Withholds Action While Strikes Spread

'Execute the Law, End Defense Strikes,' George Tells Roosevelt

'Stronger Executive Course' Demanded by Georgian.

By LAMAR Q. BALL, Constitution Staff Writer.

VIENNA, Ga., Nov. 18.—Fascism of "a most intolerable character" is lurking in the corridors of the national government as a result of today's ill-advised labor disputes, said United States Senator Walter F. George at his home in Vienna when he called for the immediate operation of American industry on a full-time basis.

Senator George advocated amendment of the Wagner act to make it unlawful for the Labor Relations Board to recognize as bargaining agent any group known to be affiliated with Communists or whose leaders advise strikes which threaten the security of the nation.

"Strikes in defense industries cannot be defended. Full operation of all industry is now vitally necessary, hence strikes generally should cease during this emergency," said Senator George.

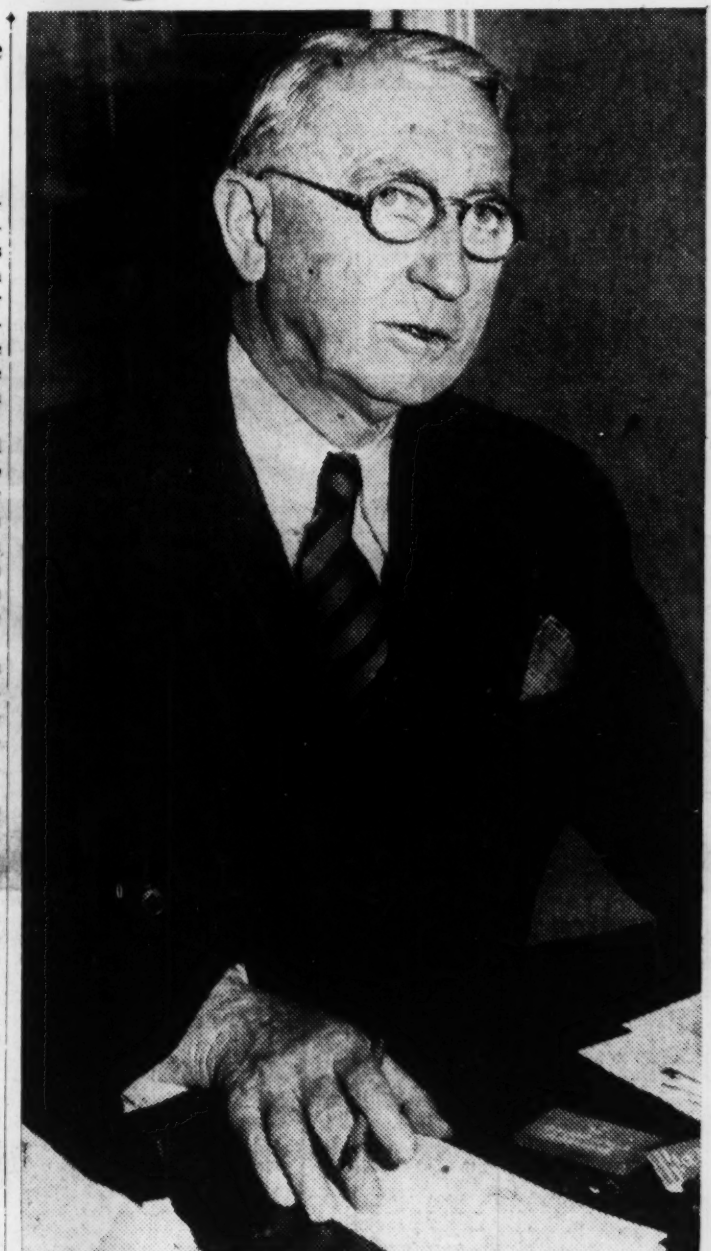

"The overwhelming majority of workers do not favor strikes in defense industries. They are brought on by selfish dictators in positions of leadership."

"Taking over the plants by the government is not an answer to the problem. Such leaders will compel the government to take over the plants in order to force the government to meet their selfish demands. Milk and water laws providing mere cooling-off periods will not meet the problem."

"All strikes would not have been prevented, but the vast majority of them would never have occurred if a strong executive course had been taken. Time after time the congress has indicated its willingness to enact any law desired by the President to bring an end to strikes and to secure uninterrupted operation of all industry essential to our national defense."

"The American people are waking up."

UMW Leader's Stand 'Invalid,' Says President

Disorders Reported as Pickets and Workers Clash at Pits.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—A work stoppage by thousands of commercial coal miners in sympathy with the strike of their fellow unionists in the captive pits became imminent tonight after a day which saw a further rebuke by President Roosevelt to John L. Lewis, but no specific government action.

William Blizzard, district vice president of the CIO-United Mine Workers' Union in West Virginia, predicted that all the 550 mines in that state, employing 105,000 men, would be closed within 48 hours. Already 4,000 miners in one county have been out two days on a sympathy strike and tonight three mines in another county, employing 1,500 men, were reported idle.

From Kentucky came an announcement by Edgar Reynolds, union field representative, that 6,000 miners in the 32 pits of the Hazard coal field, all commercial mines, would stage a sympathy walkout tomorrow.

Sympathy walkouts closed 13 additional commercial mines in Pennsylvania.

Mr. Roosevelt challenged the validity of Lewis' position in demanding a union shop for the captive mines, but said he had no news as to what steps he might be planning to take to get the mines back in production.

At a press conference, the chief executive disagreed with Lewis' contention that to accept an open shop in the captive mines would

Thompson Strikes From the Shoulder, Tells Atlantans Some Startling Things

Lick John Lewis Or Shun Hitler, Appeal, Stage 30-Minute Strike Leader Warns

Head of Manufacturers Cites Inside Peril to Democracy.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—

Walter D. Fuller, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, told a meeting of the Sales Executives Club today:

"If we can't lick John Lewis, then we better lay off Hitler."

Referring to industry's efforts in the emergency, he said, "more defense equipment has been delivered to the government than even was ordered eight months ago," but asked:

"Are we all out for national security as demanded for the American people or for union security as demanded by selfish labor leaders?"

Fair Weather Forecast

Today, Rain Tomorrow
Rain will fall on Georgia tomorrow, the weather bureau forecast last night. The weatherman promised fair and continued warm weather for today, to be followed by showers and cooler weather tomorrow and Friday.
Temperature extremes today will be 54 and 75 degrees. Yesterday's low and high points were 52 and 67 degrees.

GLASGOW, Scotland, Nov. 18.—

(AP)—Ignoring government appeals posted on plant walls, thousands of Clydeside shipbuilding workers struck for 30 minutes today to protest a delay in negotiations for a 10-shilling ($2) wage increase on salaries ranging from the equivalent of $12 to $16 a week.

The interruption at 4:30 p. m. (10:30 a. m., E. S. T.) was not recognized by the Amalgamated Engineering (Machinists) Union, but strike leaders estimated that 100,000 workers would participate daily in such token walkouts unless their demands were met.

Other workers met and adopted resolutions calling for a decision by the national arbitration tribunal within a month.

Some trade unions dispatched telegrams protesting this strike, which cost thousands of hours of work in an industry held vital to the "Battle of the Atlantic."

While an Amalgamated Engineering Union official conferred in London with government leaders, A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, had last-minute appeals posted at the yards in an attempt to forestall the strike.

Hitler To Get No Rest In Russian War, She Says.

Dorothy Thompson—in the best Dorothy Thompson style—struck right out from the shoulder last night at the municipal auditorium and told Atlantans some startling things on the affairs of the day.

In brief, these are some of the more important things she said:

"The American coal miners, if given the opportunity, would quickly vote to continue work."

"I believe the labor unions have a case when it comes to the closed shop but their case is without foundation when the closed shop would interfere with the defense of the nation."

"Hitler will never get a day of rest in his war with the Russians because they will keep on fighting."

"Hitler will have lost the war on the day when America can turn out 3,000 bombing planes a month."

America's Outpost.

"Great Britain is now America's outpost. Should the British Isles fall we would be without allies and with a hostile Europe turned against us."

"The sea lanes which have been our protection since the beginning must be kept open and any President who would neglect to keep them open ought to be impeached and removed from office."

There were seating arrangements at the auditorium for 5,176 persons and the building was filled to capacity. It was a cosmopolitan audience—housewives, women's club leaders, businessmen, educators, bankers, students, bishops and laymen. They greeted the noted columnist, lecturer and radio commentator with a thunderous

Unpaid Bills Dangerous In Emergencies

Good Credit, Vital in Emergencies, Can Be Restored With Good Loan.

Unpaid bills create a dangerous situation for any family. Because when unexpected emergencies strike, ready cash or good credit is absolutely essential. It is good business to maintain good credit with borrowed money, if necessary.

Use of a good loan to pay up old bills is a well-known plan at the Southern Security and Investment Corporation. Almost anyone who has a job can get from $50.00 to $1,000.00 immediately without delay or embarrassment. With this money, credit standing can usually be refinished to provide additional cash if necessary.

Interested persons are invited to visit the Southern Security and Investment Corporation for a discussion of financial problems without any obligation to borrow. The friendly "Southern Security" offices are located on the 4th floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building at the corner of Broad and Marietta Streets. Every effort is made to suit each loan to the needs of the individual borrower. —(adv.)

FULL HOUSE FOR DOROTHY THOMPSON—Every seat was occupied last night by an eager audience as Dorothy Thompson, celebrated columnist, who is featured in The Constitution, spoke on "These Crucial Days." This photo, made from the stage of the auditorium a few moments before Miss Thompson made her appearance, shows her audience eagerly waiting to hear her. In her address, Miss Thompson praised and criticized President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, and expressed the opinion that if President Roosevelt should address striking coal miners they would vote against a strike at this time. She said all miners are not in accord with their leaders.

Atlantans Hear Dorothy Thompson Speak

applause but when the applause died out Miss Thompson wasted no moments.

She plunged right into her subject which was built around "These Crucial Days." Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution, in which paper Miss Thompson's writings appear regularly, had introduced the speaker.

Lands F. D. R., Churchill. In her first sentence Miss Thompson said, "This country is fortunate in having a President like Franklin D. Roosevelt, and Great Britain is fortunate that Winston Churchill is her premier. And," she added, "the world is fortunate in having them both."

She admitted she previously had criticized both men.

Every eye was focused upon her as she began to speak. She wore a blue dress, square cut and low at the neck, around which was a string of pearls. It was a rather severe gown, with only touches of white lace at the wrists and at the bosom. She wore earrings and a ring on the little finger of her left hand. When Miss Thompson arrived at the auditorium from her apartment at the Henry Grady hotel she wore a short fur coat and two large orchids.

Thankfulness Theme. Miss Thompson was not unmindful of the Thanksgiving Day, introducing her line of thought with suggestions for thankfulness. "I am glad and thankful," she said, "that Hitler has not won the war, and that he is farther from winning it than a year ago. I am thankful that democracy is being demonstrated as a living force, and that it is impossible to impose an unwanted government upon conquered people.

"I am thankful that a national will is emerging in America, despite our confusion and conflicts. I am thankful for Franklin Delano Roosevelt, who understands better and who understands first of all the great crisis that confronts the world, and that American safety depends upon her naval forces." She thought the country extremely lucky to have as chief executive a man who had been an assistant secretary of the Navy.

Georgia people, and southerners were made aware by Miss Thompson of what Hitler would do for the whole world when she at length referred to "The Tragic Era" that befell the south during the days of the sixties.

"Carpet-baggers will be replaced by Nazis," she said. "Should Britain fail, America would be without allies; and in five years' time Germany could master the world. President Roosevelt is fully determined that the sea mastery shall not pass into German hands," said she.

Britain Chief Outpost.

"We now have a two-ocean Navy, with Britain as our chief outpost, and, if some of our congressmen should give away our Navy and Britain fails, then Britain would become the first outpost of a hostile Europe, and we should be left without an ally."

Miss Thompson paid her respects to the labor situation. She said no one should have power to withdraw any commodity that is needed in a national emergency. "Could the miners be given a chance to vote their own convictions," said she, "they would vote to support the defense program, and continue work."

"This will be a long war unless strikes are prohibited, production speeded up, and periods of exhaustion be forced upon Hitler. Americans who oppose the defense program are but unconscious tools of Hitler. The technique that will win this war is never to let Hitler have a rest period."

"Following this war, look forward to a day when there will be something of a United States of Europe, when men will learn to live co-operatively, and use their powers and resources for a better civilization and a higher standard of living."

New Pioneer Spirit. "I do not believe the world is going down into the dark ages again. There will come a new pioneer spirit in this country, when peace-time activities will be utterly diverse from war preparations. I will not be a time for timid souls."

Following her address, Miss Thompson, although greatly fatigued, undertook to answer some of the hundreds of inquiries that were given in by persons present. "What do you think of Hess?" someone asked. In reply Miss Thompson said, "Hess went to England on his own, thinking that Churchill had no following, and that he could quickly bring about peace, and return to Germany in three days."

"What of the Japanese?" another inquired. Miss Thompson said Japan realizes she is in a horrible mess, with retreat almost impossible. "I think Japan will get into this war, largely on account of internal conditions, due to the idleness of some 2,000,000 soldiers. However, she will get into the war as late as she can, and not make the mistake Mussolini did."

Replying to the inquiry, "What of the Balfour declaration?" Miss Thompson said the Jewish question is a problem that must be solved, and that something must be done for the Jews. Abundant land in Arabia can be found, land that can be irrigated, and that can be made to furnish a home for Arabians, leaving Palestine a home for the Jewish people.

Squirrel Hunter Bags

Big Owl Near Ben Hill John H. Pirkle, of 1047 Dewey street, S. W., went squirrel hunting Monday, but all he bagged was the biggest hoot owl he ever saw, he reported yesterday.

Pirkle said he was hunting in the woods near Ben Hill when he saw a huge bird soaring over him. He shot at it and down came an owl with a 52-inch wing spread. "He circled the ground just like an airplane landing," he asserted.

RUSSIA WILL NOT LET HITLER REST—Dorothy Thompson last night told Atlantans the Russians will never stop fighting, and that Hitler, now in need of rest, will not get it. Here she is shown making her address at the City Auditorium.

Miss Thompson Wants F. D. R. To Meet Miners Face to Face

By FRANK DRAKE.

To break the power of John L. Lewis, Dorothy Thompson, famous author, columnist and commentator, yesterday declared President Roosevelt should go out to one of the "captive" coal mines and talk directly with the coal miners as citizens of the United States.

Miss Thompson said she firmly believes the miners themselves do not want to strike and would go back to work without government intervention if the President appealed to them.

As for the strategy of World War II, this famous writer, whose columns are regular features of The Constitution, said she was in complete agreement with the President and does not believe America will ever send an expeditionary force or that his policies will lead to that necessity.

Met by the Press.

A Constitution reporter and photographer met Miss Thompson in her drawing room at Peachtree Station and rode with her to the Terminal, where she was welcomed by the officials of the city, the business and professional women's organizations sponsoring her talk here; Clark Howell, editor and publisher of The Constitution; H. H. Trotter, vice president and business manager of The Constitution, and a large group of representative citizens.

Miss Thompson was tired from hard work aboard the train all day long with her secretary, Miss Madeline Shaw, but she still had plenty of energy. She was putting on a perky little hat with perky feather when the photographer and reporter burst into her compartment.

Miss Thompson has very pretty blue eyes and she has a way of looking at nothing with them while she is deep in thought.

Then suddenly she'll turn and look right down at you, penetrating.

Regrets Crisis.

She's full of regret that the "captive" coal mine issue had to come up now in the midst of this emergency.

"The matter of a closed shop could wait," she declared. "As a matter of fact, I do not see why the steel men do not give it to them, because, as the President says, 95 per cent of the miners are members of the union. But we should put first things first, and the miners are citizens of the United States before they are miners."

Miss Thompson thinks the President has been very fair indeed about the labor situation, as she has said in her recent columns and she is out to defend him against criticism of his policy.

"Congress should take some action, if it wants something done," she asserted when told that Senator George yesterday blamed executive inaction for the labor strife.

"If the President does anything, congress shouts that he has overstepped his powers." But if he does not, congress blames him for not exercising his powers," she said.

Charming in manner and gracious, she made a hit with the members of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Atlanta and the Business and Professional Women's group of Haddassah, her sponsors, who were there to greet her.

She was whisked out to the United States Veterans' hospital for a brief talk with the veterans, and there received a resolution from the Old Hickory chapter of the Order of the Purple Heart commending her for her stand against Nazis and bunds and anti-Americanism.

From the hospital, Miss Thompson went to the studio of WSB where, in a 15-minute radio interview, she said the people of Great Britain adore Churchill and that the morale in England is first rate. She also expressed the opinion that German morale is not so good, and that she is certain there are movements afoot inside Germany to end the war with a "reasonable peace."

PURPLE HEART COMMENTS DOROTHY THOMPSON

Dorothy Thompson was commended for "her patriotic work and influence against the German-American Bund and other anti-defense activities" in resolutions adopted at the recent meeting of Old Hickory Chapter No. 98, of Atlanta, Military Order of the Purple Heart.

Miss Thompson, the resolution declared, "has distinguished herself in promoting the fight of American citizens against Nazism and other subversive groups, and she has used her knowledge and experience in banding together the thoughts of misinformed Americans."

Lewis' Reasons Branded Invalid

invalidate the United Mine Workers' contract with the commercial mines of the Appalachian area. Lewis replied immediately that he had made a true statement of the situation.

Meanwhile, expectation of government action was whetted by statements from those closely associated with the President that he was of the opinion that the time to "crack down" on Lewis, and on all interruptions in defense production, had arrived.

To Study Legislation. At the same time, the House Labor Committee decided to begin tomorrow the consideration of legislation to prevent such strikes.

Chairman Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, introduced a bill which, he said, would strengthen the Defense Mediation Board and authorize it to impose a 30-day cooling-off period, until the expiration of which a threatened strike could not lawfully materialize.

Adding to the urgency of the situation, officials of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation announced that an impending coal shortage made it possible that six blast furnaces must be closed within 48 hours. The captive mines are mines owned by the steel companies and produce fuel for their blast furnaces, not for the commercial coal market.

The day also brought disorder at a captive mine near Gary, W. Va., where gunfire wounded two members of an independent union who were seeking to enter the pits. Members of the union wired the president that they needed "protection." They had, they said, been "cut, stabbed, shot, maimed, bombed and feloniously assaulted for no reason except that we want to work."

Advanced in Letter. Lewis' contention regarding his union's agreement with the Appalachian commercial mines was advanced yesterday in a letter to the President reporting on his unsuccessful negotiations with the steel companies owning the captive mines.

He said the union's contract with the commercial mines contained a clause which would make it inoperative in the event that the union should agree to mine coal on "more favorable" wage or working conditions anywhere within the Appalachian region.

Going to the unusual length of authorizing direct quotation, Mr. Roosevelt said today:

"I want to make this point perfectly clear: that the Appalachian agreement in all the commercial mines stands just as it has ever since it went into operation, and that no question involved in the captive mines strike would affect the pay or the hours or the collective bargaining recognition of the United Mine Workers in any of the Appalachian agreement mines."

"Therefore, I do not think that point A in Mr. Lewis' letter was a valid point."

Only One Issue. The President's contention was based, apparently, on the fact that the only issue of the captive coal mines strike is the union shop, a system under which all employees must join the union after a stipulated period. Lewis' demand for this concession and the steel companies' refusal to grant it was the cause of the strike. Agreement had been reached all that hours and wages should be those of the Appalachian contract.

Soon after the President's assertion of today, Lewis issued a statement sticking to his original position:

"Obviously," he said, "the open shop condition of the contract must be esteemed by the steel companies as a more favorable condition, otherwise they would not fight and disturb the tranquility of the nation by insisting upon the deletion of the union shop clause from the Appalachian agreement."

Cannot Be Considered. "Any suggestion that the Mine Workers should dishonor their own agreement by giving the great steel companies more favored conditions than other companies cannot be seriously considered," Lewis added. "The Mine Workers have a record of 50 years of punctilious observance of all contractual obligations. They cannot now depart from that policy."

The day also brought a statement from Mr. Roosevelt informing the CIO that defense production must go on.

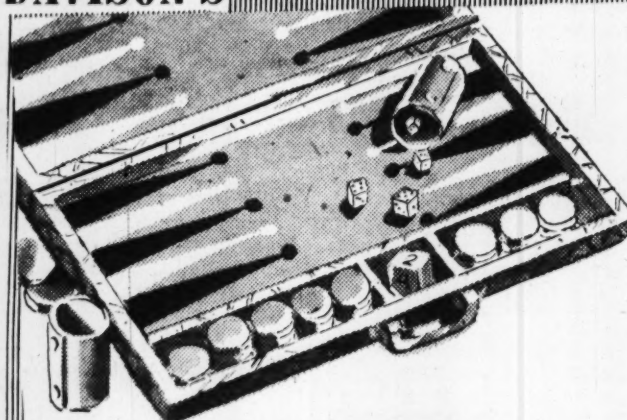

The President, meanwhile, took action to prevent a walkout in another, and vital field, the railroads. With a strike which would paralyze rail transportation already called for December 7, the President conferred with railroad management and labor at the White House. No conclusions were reached, however, and another conference is scheduled for today. Rail workers, demanding a 30 percent pay increase, have rejected a proposal for 7 1/2 percent raise.

Legislation Discussed. During the morning, the President held his regular weekly discussion with administration congressional leaders. Labor legislation in general, and the coal strike in particular, were discussed, but there was no indication as to when action in this direction might be expected. Numerous members of congress have been demanding legislation to prevent strikes in defense industries.

The House Labor Committee announced a decision to begin consideration today of a large number of bills relating to strikes. A bill might be agreed upon by the first of next week, one committee member said. All, said Representative Landis, Republican, Indiana, agreed it was time for action.

Chairman Norton, Democrat, New Jersey, of the Labor Committee, said she had prepared and introduced a bill upon her "own initiative only." It would authorize the Defense Mediation Board to order a 30-day cooling off period before strikes could be called, and permit it to operate with only government representatives if either capital or labor members refused to co-operate. (The CIO members of the board resigned last week after its decision against the United Mine Workers in the captive mine case.)

Mexican Oil Pact Believed Near

Daniels Sees Settlement Just to Firms

Latin Public Wants Early Solution of Stalemate.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Settlement of the Mexican petroleum controversy was believed in usually well-informed oil circles to be near today, following the return to Washington of Joseph Daniels, ambassador to Mexico.

Daniels indicated he was hopeful of an early peace in the three-year-long economic battle and that both sides were closer together.

Oil men here suggested the two sides actually were only about $70,000,000 apart.

This figure, or something very near to it, represents the difference between what the Mexican government says is the value of the expropriated properties of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and an estimate current in local oil circles although not issued by the company itself.

Concerted Trade Effort. This estimate becomes important at this time as reports from Mexico City and Washington indicate both governments are making a concerted attempt to reach a friendly solution of the problem created March 18, 1938, when about $500,000,000 of oil properties worked by foreign companies were seized by the Mexican government on a promise of payment at some future date.

That Mexico, which acquired some of the richest oil lands in the world in order to establish economic independence, is being financially ruined by those very lands is another report.

For many years the oil wells, operated by foreigners of vast financial resources and technical experience, were one of Mexico's chief sources of income. When the government took over it was unable to supply the millions of dollars necessary for plant equipment, exploration and research which constitute the chief stock in trade of the big oil companies. Further, there were too few skilled Mexican oil men.

Both Sides Learn. The last three years of bitter experiences have taught Mexicans something of the difficulties of proper industrial management and oil men familiar with the Mexican picture say they and the Mexicans now are able to understand each other's views far better than was possible before the Mexican government went into the oil business.

Both sides, it is said, agree it is obvious Mexico cannot pay cash for the expropriated properties. Some sources suggest the likelihood the United States government might lend Mexico between $10,000,000 and $30,000,000 with which to make a down payment for the properties, paying off whatever the rest of the agreed amount might be in installments.

But this suggestion appears untenable in the present condition of the oil properties.

Proposed Solution. Some of the better informed experts believe it possible that both sides may agree to a return of the foreign companies to their previous operations, permitting these companies to make up their losses and to work out their investment costs, then to turn all these rejuvenated properties over to the Mexican government to operate thenceforth as it sees fit.

Thus two principles, the Mexican nation's right to its subsoil minerals and the United States' doctrine of property rights, would be upheld.

It was noteworthy, in this connection, that when Ambassador Daniels returned to Washington today he said that any settlement of the oil controversy would be "just" to the American oil companies and that the people of Mexico were very desirous that a settlement be reached.

Society Hears 'Evie' Will Be Ambassador

Washington society yesterday was all agog as the rumor spread that Mrs. "Evie" Robert, wife of L. W. "Chip" Robert, Atlanta and Washington engineer, might be appointed ambassador to Mexico.

With her husband, Mrs. Robert maintains a home here at 445 Peachtree Battle avenue, and another residence in Washington.

As the gossip spread like fire through the nation's capital, Mrs. Robert, one of Washington's social leaders, would not comment about it.

Friends of Mrs. Robert pointed out that she spent her childhood in Mexico, and had always been interested in Mexican affairs. She has never held a public office, and if given the ambassador's portfolio, she will be the third American woman to achieve such distinction, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen and Mrs. Daisy Harriman having been appointed ambassadors to Scandinavian countries.

Where Story Started. The story about the beautiful Atlantan really was started by the Washington Star, which carried the following news comment yesterday:

"You've heard practically every distinguished man you know rumored as our next ambassador to Mexico—but the latest, and the very latest and from those who are supposedly 'in the know'—is that it won't be any of the gentlemen heretofore mentioned—it will be none other than Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert! First of all, say our informants, she's better qualified than any man you can think of. She lived in Mexico City from the time she was an infant of 3 weeks—spoke the language as a child."

Got What It Takes. "She's got the poise and the savoir faire that it takes to run an important embassy—she's got the intelligence, and, what's more, she has great and very real beauty and charm enough to get her own way in any issue that she felt important enough to work for."

"We asked her about it last night, and for once in her life she was speechless. Like the late Mr. Coolidge, she refused to make any comment. We couldn't ask 'Chip' because he's now flying back from a business trip to Bermuda—so-o-o all we can say is that we hope it's true—it will be a new high in ambassadorial diplomacy, and we entirely and wholeheartedly approve."

HOG-TREEING DOG.

VIDALIA, Ga., Nov. 18.—John Osborn, city policeman, told Mayor Rice he knew very little about a Negro prisoner in court, but that he was familiar with the Negro's dog, which he said was an expert at "treering" hogs for the Negro.

AN AMBASSADOR?—Mrs. "Evie" Robert, wife of L. W. "Chip" Robert, who, it is rumored, may be appointed ambassador to Mexico. This portrait, painted by Artist Charles Wiltseck, was the basis for a $750 suit filed in Washington against Mrs. Robert by the artist.

Seasoned Diplomat for Mexican Portfolio Seen by Washington

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—With the nomination of a new ambassador to Mexico expected almost momentarily, the capital buzzed tonight with candidate predictions ranging from an associate supreme court justice, through four high-ranking State Department figures, to a Washington social leader.

It appeared, however, that at least nine of the 13 names mentioned could be eliminated. A source close to Mexican-United States affairs said the choice now lies between three foreign service career men serving as ambassadors to American republics and an assistant secretary of state.

The man mentioned most frequently is R. Henry Norweb, ambassador to Peru and one of the State Department's best informed Ralph E. Adams, executive secretary of the university, said, however, that Dr. Foster's condition remained critical and he was being kept in an iron lung.

Road Machinery Sale Nets $250,000

Georgia received about $250,000 from the sale of the best of road building equipment purchased during the Rivers administration and valued at between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, when it was new, W. E. Wilburn, chairman of the State Highway Board, announced yesterday.

Wilburn said some trucks, scrapers and tractors had not been sold but expressed doubt they would bring any appreciable sum since the best equipment already had been auctioned off.

He pointed out that trucks worth $1,000,000 could not be sold for more than $50,000, adding: "They are just junk. The engines are out and they are practically worthless."

The feeling of the leadership, it was said, was that ill-considered amendments might be hastily tacked on the bill.

After a conference with Speaker Rayburn, Chairman Cannon, Democrat, Missouri, of the House Appropriations Committee, announced that the huge new money bill would not be brought before the house until the first week of December. In the meantime, it was explained, the leadership hoped that the question of curbing defense strikes would be settled.

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, spent several hours with the committee behind closed doors explaining the need for the Army's $6,687,000,000 share of the new funds and members said they had been assured no new American Expeditionary Force was in the making.

Kiwanis Urges Congress Curb On Shutdowns

Immediate Steps Asked To End Strikes in Defense Plants.

Atlanta Kiwanians went on record by resolution yesterday in publicly denouncing strikes in defense industry and urged that congress "take such immediate steps as may be necessary to pass constructive legislation, whether same affects capital, labor or any other group, to the end that the defense program as now devised and in process may proceed without costly handicaps and embarrassing delays."

Henry C. Heinz, past international president of Kiwanis and chairman of the Atlanta club's public affairs committee which drew up the resolution, explained that inaction on the part of congress and seeming reluctance of individual citizens to express their opinions forcibly to their representatives and senators made it imperative that civic organizations of America take quick action as a patriotic duty.

Text of the resolution follows: "Whereas, the citizens of the United States are committed to a program of necessary personal sacrifice to make an all-out defense against the totalitarian aggressors who would enslave the world; and

"Whereas, certain organized minorities are impeding this program in their own selfish interests:

"Be it resolved that the congress of the United States be urged to take such immediate steps as may be necessary to pass constructive legislation, whether same affects capital, labor or any other group, to the end that the defense program as now devised and in process may proceed without costly handicaps and embarrassing delays; and

"Be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States and to the representatives from the state of Georgia now in the senate and house of representatives."

Court Cracks Down on Florida Wholesale Divorce Business

Decree Cancelled, Woman Fined $100 as Judge Says Residence Requirement Is 'No Mock Formality.'

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 18.—(AP)—Circuit Judge Richard H. Hunt warned today of stiff punishment awaiting those who violate the law in order to obtain a quick Florida divorce.

He assessed a $100 fine or a 10-day jail sentence against Mrs. Lillian Irene Rippe Murphy, now of Miami Beach, who was cited for getting a final decree after only 32 days' actual physical residence in this state. "Ninety days' residence is required."

His order voided her divorce from George Thomas Murphy, now a patient in the United States veterans' hospital at Mountain Home, Tenn.

The judge has been a prime mover in an investigation into Miami's wholesale divorce business.

The contempt citation commented that Mrs. Murphy, "like altogether too many others filing divorce actions in this court, apparently regarded the Florida residence requirement and judicial procedure initiated under the divorce statute as a mere matter of mock formality, and chose to believe that deliberate concealment and falsification of residence occupied the same category as the proverbial 'little white lie,' and

Rejected Beef Was Mishandled, Argentine Charges

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 18.—(AP)—The Argentine ministry of agriculture tonight blamed mishandling of Argentine canned beef after it reached the United States for damage which caused the United States Army to reject a shipment to San Francisco and Seattle.

The ministry issued a statement saying the meat reached the United States "in perfect condition" and that deterioration was "due principally to the inadequate manner in which the tins were re-packed in the port of debarkation and inspection to be sent a great distance from New Orleans."

It was announced in San Francisco November 4 that the Army had rejected a shipment of 434,808 pounds of Argentine canned beef because hundreds of the cans had burst at the military storage depot for the Ninth Corps Area.

Colonel F. J. Riley, quartermaster supply officer, blamed "imperfect processing" for deterioration of the meat, which was passed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture when it arrived at New Orleans. He said only a small amount actually had spoiled but that he would not take a chance on any of it.

Jury Locked In As Sutherland Case Is Studied

Charge Dealing With Immunity From Self-Accusation Reread

A federal jury, studying the case of W. F. Sutherland, Atlanta policeman, tried in United States district court on an indictment charging him with violation of civil rights, in connection with the alleged torture of a young Negro to obtain a confession, was ordered locked up for the night at 9:30 o'clock last night by Judge E. Marvin Underwood.

The case of Sutherland, who went on trial last Wednesday, was given to the jury at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. After deliberating for several hours, the jury asked Judge Underwood if the main issue was coercion to obtain a confession. The judge then reread the part of his charge dealing with an individual's right of immunity from self accusation.

One of the jurors then inquired if it were possible through the everyday application of the law by the police department that the duties had become more stringent than the law allows. Judge Underwood replied that no duty of a police officer could exceed this particular statute.

This is the second time Sutherland has been tried in federal court on the indictment, his first trial early last spring, ending in a mistrial when the trial jury reported it was hopelessly deadlocked.

suggested that the new vice chief was being "prepared for supreme command."

While Pownall's special assignment was kept secret, it was noted that he served with the artillery in India before the World War and returned there for operations on the northwest frontier in 1930-1931. He was office director of military operations and intelligence from 1938 to 1940 and then was chief of the British expeditionary force general staff.

Discordant Note

A discordant note was struck by the Herald. It asked: "Now what is behind all this? Is it true that even in war the army adheres to iron rules of the age limit?"

"If so, adherence is crazy... if there is dissatisfaction, why are we not given the reasons rather than an official estimate of Sir John's (Dill's) invaluable qualities?"

"If there is no dissatisfaction, why is Sir John being superseded and relegated to a post remote from the immediate affairs of the war?"

The Mirror explained that the age limit was merely "a convenient excuse for making a change which is considered advisable for other reasons."

wished to punish to lonely spots at night and beating them severely with leather whips and similar devices.

Eidson was convicted of participating in the whipping of P. S. Toney, who is now a guard at the Conley Army depot. A few weeks ago the Prison and Parole Commission refused to recommend a parole.

Attorney Allen said the Governor could either grant the floggers a parole or a pardon, despite the recommendation of the commission.

Dan Duke represented the Fulton county solicitor general's office at yesterday's hearing, although he said his office was not notified that the Eidson case was coming before the Governor.

The Georgia court of appeals yesterday upheld the conviction of another one of the floggers, George Cameron, who was sentenced to 12 months of each of two counts.

PRISON LASH REPORT

READY FOR GOVERNOR

The lash as a method of punishment for prisoners held the spotlight for the senate and house penitentiary committees last night as they rounded out their report on the Georgia penal system and prepared to submit it to the Governor today.

Although the committees were divided 4 to 3 in favor of solitary confinement, Representative W. R. Blease, of Brooks, chairman of the house committee, held out for the lash, insisting it was the least harmful yet most humiliating form of punishment that could be administered to convicts.

Representative Blease conferred at length with the Governor, and it is generally known that the chief executive favors a return to the lash.

The Brooks county legislator said he did not think convicts should be whipped without the presence of physicians and that strokes should be limited to 12 or 15.

Several weeks ago the legislators recommended that additional windows be placed in solitary confinement cells and that the number or prisoners confined at one time be restricted.

Included in the joint committee's report also will be recommendations on the proper subsistence for prisoners as well as other in the penal system.

Charles Sims, 12, Dies in Hospital

Other survivors include three sisters, Mrs. O. N. Rich, Mrs. J. W. Thurman, Mrs. M. E. Glover; three brothers, Carl, George and Paul Sims.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Flat Shoals Primitive Baptist church, with Elder W. F. Buford officiating. Burial will be in the churchyard under the direction of Howard L. Carmichael.

Lewis Clique Glum As CIO Indorses F.D.R.'s Foreign Policy

'Forthright' Stand Wins Labor's Praise

Vote Called Unanimous, Though Miners Don't Participate.

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—(P)—Full support of President Roosevelt's foreign policy was voted by the Congress of Industrial Organizations at its annual convention today while a group of followers of John L. Lewis sat in glum silence.

Delegates adopted a resolution commending the chief executive's "forthright" stand in the foreign field, attacking Charles A. Lindbergh—whose name provoked a scattering of hisses—and urging extension of all possible aid and co-operation to Great Britain, the Soviet Union and China.

After 15 union leaders, with CIO President Philip Murray serving as oratorical anchor man, had endorsed the pronouncement, the sentiment of the convention was recorded on a standing vote.

Remain Seated. Most of the delegation of United Mine Workers and most of the representatives of the United Construction Workers' Organizing Committee, including their chairman, A. D. Lewis, brother of John L. Lewis, remained seated.

A standing vote of those in opposition was called for, but Lewis adherents abstained, and the resolution was ruled as carried unanimously.

Passage of the resolution was regarded as a personal victory for Murray, who declared that "in the captive mine case I shall be at the back and call of President Lewis and my union."

F. D. R. Sends Note. Earlier, President Roosevelt sent a message urging the CIO to co-operate in the defense program "without interruption and delay," and called for peace in the ranks of organized labor in the name of patriotism and for the sake of national unity.

The resolution adopted by the delegates advocated a quick defeat for Nazi Germany.

President Roosevelt's message—read by Murray—said in part: "Our defense program must be all out and at all times. We need guns, tanks, planes and ships and we must produce guns, tanks, planes and ships without delay and without interruption, and the American people and their government are determined that we shall have them."

Lewis Commended. John L. Lewis, founder-in-chief of the CIO, came in for commendation and indirect criticism in the speeches which preceded adoption of foreign policy resolution.

Referring to what he described as attacks on Lewis in the press, William Dalrymple, regional director of the CIO in Oregon, asked: "Why do you blast hell out of John L. Lewis when he carries out the mandate of 600,000 miners? In reply to any statement that John Lewis is a traitor, I say that there isn't a greater American than John L. Lewis."

Philip Murray Asks Roosevelt For 'Better Break' for Labor

DETROIT, Nov. 18.—(INS)—The fourth national convention of the CIO today heard CIO Chief Philip Murray call upon President Roosevelt for a "better break" for labor in the defense program.

Murray asked for greater labor representation in the development of the country's defense plans, and coupled a denunciation of "labor baiting" with a charge that dynamite recently had been planted near his home "to frighten my wife and family."

"The National CIO will fight every inch of the way against labor baiting, labor manacring and labor baiting legislation," he said.

position was called for, but Lewis adherents abstained, and the resolution was ruled as carried unanimously.

Passage of the resolution was regarded as a personal victory for Murray, who declared that "in the captive mine case I shall be at the back and call of President Lewis and my union."

Italians Seize Episcopalian Rector in Rome

Woolf Held Incommunicado With No Formal Charge Made.

ROME, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Italian police today arrested the Rev. Hiram Gruber Woolf, of Elmira, N. Y., rector of the famous St. Paul's American Episcopal church in Rome, and held him incommunicado after informing United States embassy officials that his case was being investigated "on suspicion of intelligence activity."

The minister, who formerly held pulpits in Dresden and Munich, Germany, was arrested in his rectory at 9:30 o'clock this morning, two days before he planned to conduct a Thanksgiving Day service at which he would have read President Roosevelt's annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation.

The official Italian news agency Stefani has circulated a version of this proclamation quoting Mr. Roosevelt as thanking "the God of the United States," and one newspaper, La Stampa, of Turin, has characterized this as "a case of delicious pride."

(Actually, Mr. Roosevelt's proclamation, issued November 8, said "we are grateful to the Father of us all for the innumerable daily manifestations of His beneficent mercy in affairs both public and private.")

The two policemen who took Mr. Woolf into custody searched the rectory, behind the church, which is the Via Nazionale, a principal thoroughfare, and confiscated a tray of visiting cards and copies of the unofficial news bulletin which the United States Department of State sends to the embassy here by radio.

The United States charge d'affaires, George Wadsworth, of Buffalo, N. Y., called at the foreign ministry to inquire about the case and was told that the action was taken on the basis of "seriously incriminating information" having nothing to do with the pastor's church activities.

Wadsworth told the officials he knew Mr. Woolf well and knew nothing to indicate he had engaged in any intelligence activity. He asked to see him personally, wherever he is held, but it was indicated this request would not be granted for several days.

Under admiralty law, the owners of a rescuing ship—in this case the United States government—can claim an award when it helps save cargo or crew members of another vessel, providing, of course, that its owners can be brought into court.

The Odenwald's crew has been turned over to the U. S. Army, and authorities said presumably they would be handed over for detention in the same manner as other German seamen, according to Associated Press.

The scuttled vessel is now in the custody of the United States marshal at San Juan, but the Justice Department stressed the fact that in its legal action it was making no effort to claim the vessel through forfeiture proceedings.

However, the German owners of the ship, under admiralty law, will either have to come forward and defend the salvage or forfeit the vessel to this country.

Young Pole Tells Of Nazi Torture

Walter Whittvirgh, 20, who recently fled from his homeland, Poland, yesterday was working as a waiter in a Broad street restaurant.

The youth, speaking broken English, exhibited his arms, badly scarred by hot irons, and told about having spent six months in a German concentration camp. Among the scars was a large "P" put there with a hot iron by the German Gestapo and permanently marking him as a Pole.

The youth, en route to his sister's home in Texas, was robbed of his funds while on a bus near Atlanta, he said. He plans to continue his journey as soon as he has made enough money.

70 Per Cent of U. S. Voters Oppose Lewis, Poll Shows

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 18.—New evidence to show that such adverse criticism of labor unionism as exists on the part of the public today arises largely from the conduct of labor union leaders is revealed in a nation-wide poll just completed by the Institute.

Jones Notifies Schools of Cut In NYA Work

No New Assignments, Replacements Can Be Made.

Boisfeuillet Jones, state administrator, National Youth Administration, yesterday notified officials of 830 high schools and 50 colleges and universities in Georgia that starting Thursday and continuing through January 31, 1942, no new assignment of students to the NYA program and no replacements can be made. During the last half of the school year, he said, the program will be reduced to 50 to 75 per cent of that of the first half.

Jones estimated that less than 4,000 of the 8,000 now employed on work projects for out-of-school, unemployed young people in the state can be kept on the rolls. The reduction in youth work defense projects in the state, he said, will be to 1,400 from the 1,800 now employed.

Meanwhile, officials of the Work Projects Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps in Georgia were awaiting Washington confirmation of reports that their programs are to take drastic cuts. WPA Administrator Harry L. Harmon expects to go to Washington in a day or two in regard to the cut, and Colonel Lawrence W. Young, CCC officer for the Fourth Corp Area, said he expected the reduction as an economy measure.

DEAR IMOGENE!
WOR Every Thurs. 9 A.M.

The great majority of American voters believe every worker should have the right to join a union for his own economic protection. In fact, the principle of collective bargaining has been consistently endorsed by more than two-thirds of voters in every Institute poll on the issue in the last five years, including the latest poll only a fortnight ago. At the same time, recent studies have indicated that a large majority (68 per cent), feel that labor union leaders—as distinguished from the rank and file of union members—are not doing all they should to help the national defense production program.

Spontaneous Replies.
The latest poll on labor leadership was conducted during the period of November 7-14 when the issue of the captive coal mine strike was boiling to a crisis. A cross-section of the voting population throughout the country was asked the simple question: "What is your opinion of John L. Lewis?"

All replies were purely spontaneous and were recorded verbatim by interviewers working on behalf of the Institute.

An analysis of the opinions recorded indicates that a large proportion of voters—more than 8 in every 10—have formed very definite views one way or the other about Mr. Lewis. A great many, particularly in the lower income groups, described him as fearless, honest and a great organizer. The majority of opinions, however, were unfavorable, as the following tabulation indicates:

14% Expressed Opinions Favorable to Lewis.
70% Expressed Opinions Unfavorable.
16% Were Undecided or Gave No Answer.

Some of those who sympathize with him expressed the belief that "he may have overstepped himself," but that this nevertheless did not affect their basic opinion of the man.

Among the group who expressed unfavorable opinions the chief arguments were that Mr. Lewis has misused his power and perverted it to selfish ends, that he is "stubborn," "unreasonable" and "unpatriotic" that his tactics have "hurt" not helped the workingman, that he should "co-operate more with President Roosevelt," and that, in calling the original coal mine strike, he "put his own interests above the interests of the country."

Some were so infuriated by Lewis' tactics that they refused even to speak about him. A dairy farmer in Shelburne, Vt., for example, when asked his opinion of Mr. Lewis, shot back curtly: "I wasn't brought up to swear."

Thanksgiving Mail Service Curbed

Although the state's official Thanksgiving Day will be another week off, the Atlanta post office will curtail some services and close down others tomorrow, when 32 states and the District of Columbia will celebrate Thanksgiving under President Roosevelt's proclamation for national observance of the day.

L. F. Livingston, Atlanta postmaster, announced yesterday that the regular mail deliveries will be made tomorrow in the morning, two downtown and one in the residential sections. Also there will be regular parcel post deliveries and mail collection service. All windows in the post office will close at 12 o'clock noon. There will be no rural service in the state.

As to November 27, Postmaster Livingston doesn't know what to do.

'Attack' Clause Of Axis Pact Is Jap Threat

Interpretation Seen Dependent Upon Result of U. S. Talks.

TOKYO, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Japan intimated today that her decision as to how to define her obligations under the third clause of the Axis pact—that clause which under some circumstances could be interpreted to mean a shooting alliance with Germany and Italy—might depend upon the result of Saburo Kurosu's mission to Washington.

The inference thrown out by Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo was at once accepted in some foreign quarters as a bargaining effort in which the empire was using her strongest diplomatic weapon. A threat to draw much closer to the Axis than at present.

The third section of the alliance obliges each signatory to give military aid to its fellow signers if they are "attacked" by any power not involved at the time the instrument was drawn in either the European or China war.

Major Kametaro Tomioka, of the army press section, declared to the nation by radio that the United States "actually is the backbone of the ABCD encirclement of Japan"—that claim to have been effected by America, Britain, China and the Dutch East Indies.

"The United States," he said, "is taking the initiative for formations of encirclement . . . by instigating countries in the western Pacific and by the malicious nature of the United States."

HULL WILL CONTINUE TALKS WITH ENVOYS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull conferred for two hours and 45 minutes today with Japan's ambassador and special envoy, but indicated afterwards that the discussion which may settle the question of war or peace still remained in an exploratory stage.

Ambassador Nomura struck an optimistic note, however, both before the lengthy parley and after it. Before he entered Hull's office with Kurosu, the special envoy, he asked reporters:

"Why are the newspapers here all so gloomy? We are all so hopeful."

When they emerged a reporter asked Nomura:

"Do you still feel hopeful, Mr. Ambassador?" To which the ambassador shot back with a smile: "Yes, we do."

Asked if the prospects were such that he would want the negotiations continued, Hull agreed that they were and that he expected to meet the Japanese again, probably tomorrow.

Paul Redfern Left Legacy by Father

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Belief that his son, Paul R. Redfern, aviator lost on a South American flight in 1927, still lives was indicated by the probate of the will of the late Rev. Frederick C. Redfern here today.

Dr. Redfern left legacies of $1,000 each to his missing son, Paul, and three daughters.

Dr. Redfern, who was professor of history and religion at Benedict College, Columbia, S. C., died November 7. Although he had served as an educator in the southern college since 1914, he maintained a residence here.

Several expeditions have been conducted into the jungle of South America in search of Paul Redfern, who vanished on a flight from Georgia to Brazil in 1927. All searches have been fruitless.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 19, 1941.

The Need for Defense

With the groundwork already prepared for organization of civilian defense activities in Metropolitan Atlanta by the appointment of the Defense Council, every effort should be made to speed establishment of functioning units.

Civilian defense activities in this country could be compared with those of Great Britain several years before the outbreak of the war. Then, as in this country today, there was a tendency to slow organization. In that country there were those who laughed, even sneered, at the activities of those involved in implementing this defense.

The immeasurable value of these organizations became immediately obvious to the world when the terrific air attacks of the Luftwaffe were launched and when the threat of invasion was imminent.

There is little which would indicate any air attack danger to Atlanta. But there is no reason to believe that because such air attack is unlikely there is no necessity for preparation of civilian defense.

There is the definite possibility of widespread sabotage which would call into action every form of these activities of civilian defense, from the Home Guard units to messengers. For this reason, each separate unit should be fully prepared: Auxiliary police, bomb squads, auxiliary firemen, fire watchers, medical corps, rescue squads, nurses' aides corps, messengers, drivers' corps, emergency food and housing corps, decontamination corps, demolition and clearing corps, road repair crews and staff corps.

It takes time to train the members of each of these units in civilian defense. They cannot be drawn together overnight. They must be trained to function in co-ordination with each other. They must be trained to work in co-operation with existing forces. Auxiliary police-men and firemen, for example, would be worse than useless if they were not trained to work in conjunction with the regular forces.

The ever-present danger of widespread disaster such as the fire which struck Atlanta in 1917 exists today. The fire of that year was handled as efficiently as possible by the agencies which then existed. How much more effectively it could have been handled had there existed a civilian defense organization must be obvious to every person.

Atlanta today is lagging in its development of a defense setup. While there should not be undue haste in the selection of members, the Defense Council should exert all possible effort to the building up of a functioning civilian defense personnel, particularly the necessary manpower to meet any now unforeseen demand upon public services.

No longer must the Duce balk "live dangerously" from the houseposts. Thanks to the RAF, this desirable condition is now within the reach of one and all.

Fish To Testify

The house of representatives has taken the only action consonant with its honor and dignity in deciding Congressman Fish should appear before a District of Columbia grand jury investigating foreign propaganda.

It never was the intent of the Constitution that congressional immunity would extend to events of this character. Were this so, it would be possible for foreign influences to exercise all manner of power through the use of congressional dupes.

Fish's secretary has been indicted on a charge of perjury in connection with use of the congressman's frank in sending out Axis propaganda. The testimony of Fish obviously must be of value in the investigation, even though it is possible he had no connection with the matter under probe.

Congress has, therefore, acted in fortright manner to clarify an embarrassing situation, both for itself and for the country.

A defense chief points out the dangers of carelessness in industrial plants, while Morgenthau cites the hazard of inflation. All in all, they believe, it is unsafe to let us carry matches or money.

For Valued Service

All doctors and scientists are agreed that the chief weapon in the war against cancer is the spread of general knowledge about the disease. When correctly diagnosed in the early stages, cancer is curable. It is only when it has been of long standing, has advanced near to its final stages, that the victim is irrevocably doomed.

Thus the importance of informing everyone of this fact, so they may seek the advice of competent physician, or visit a cancer clinic, at the first suspicion of the onset of the disease.

In teaching the general public the facts about cancer, no factor has equalled, in importance and in effectiveness, the Woman's Field Army for the Control of Cancer. This organization has been particularly active in Georgia.

On Friday night a banquet will be held in Atlanta. At that occasion twelve Georgia women will be awarded citations of honor. To their local leadership is attributed the success of their home counties in attaining the objective, in the fight on the disease, set for 1941.

Those twelve women have well earned all honors that can be given them. There is no way of computing the number of lives their work has been instrumental in saving, no way of presenting statistics to show how many disease-tainted persons have been salvaged and restored to good health.

All Georgia should join in giving accolade to these devoted women who have labored without stint to perform a vital service for their fellow-beings.

The year's most valuable ball players turn out to be a couple of Italians. This may amaze Berlin.

No More Georgia Two-Timing

At 2 o'clock next Sunday morning railroads operating in Georgia will change their clocks to eastern standard time, thus conforming with the official time set for the entire state. The action follows a ruling to that effect made by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Change of railroad time is all that remains to eliminate time confusion from Georgia. When the legislature put the entire state on eastern standard time, it wiped out that disagreeable situation where a Georgian in one town had to go into an abstruse mathematical computation if a neighbor from another town asked him the time of day.

When the railroad time conforms with all other Georgia time the last source of irritation and confusion will be removed. It will no longer be necessary, when asking "information" at either of the Atlanta depots, for instance, when a certain train is due, to worry over whether the hour given is fast or slow, compared with your own time, as shown on watch or clock.

There was, really, never any logical reason why two times should prevail in this state. All Georgians will give special thanks, this Thanksgiving period, that two-timing is at last outlawed.

Where's Your License?

There are more than 400 Fulton county motorists who are laying up trouble for themselves. These are those drivers who have failed to claim their driver's licenses, although they applied for them in proper order.

More than 400 licenses, sent to the addresses given on the application forms, have been returned to headquarters of the State Patrol for inability of the post office to deliver them. Due to incorrect address, or to change in address without mail forwarding notification.

The troopers of the State Patrol have received orders to make cases against all drivers found operating cars without licenses. The excuse of the 400, that licenses applied for have not been received, will not be acceptable.

For, on failure to receive license, it is the duty of the driver to go to State Patrol headquarters and get it, in person. So, the 400 who are in this category have been properly warned, through publication, they face serious trouble if they continue operating their cars without license. It is hoped all of the 400 will come in that category of the wise to whom a word is sufficient.

J. ROY MCGINTY

THE CALHOUN TIMES.

I believe there is a lot of confused thinking about Governor Talmadge and Dean Cocking and the University System. It is possible, of course, that it is I who am confused. But it seems to me that Cocking, whether he is fired or not, or what becomes of him, are incidents of minor importance. The all-important question is how it was done. To my mind the important question—and the only important question—is not the fate of Cocking or of Pittman or any of the others, but the refusal of the Governor to abide the action of the duly constituted Board of Regents, and his arbitrary and dictatorial conduct in forcing a dissolution of the board so that he might appoint a new board that would do his bidding. This was "political interference" of the worst type. I know it is argued that the board was illegally constituted in the first place, but if this was true the Governor was the person principally to blame for it. This argument is a mere subterfuge; the Governor would never have raised the question of the board's legality if it had done his bidding. Governor Talmadge has some admirable qualities, and I had hoped to find it possible to heartily support his administration. When he took office in January I wrote him, in the utmost sincerity, pledging my co-operation in his efforts to make Georgia a good governor. I regret that, in the matter of his dealings with the Board of Regents, he has chosen a course along which it is impossible for me to go with him.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

COMPETITION IN CHICAGO WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—After going along for years with little or no opposition in the morning field, the old Chicago Tribune, arch enemy of the administration's foreign policy and long the dominant organ of the Republican party in the middle west, is to be given the battle of its life by a new competitor.

Backed by Marshall Field III, heir to one of the greatest personal fortunes in the country, and directed by William Evans, bluntperson publisher of the Nashville Tennessean, the new publication will represent what undoubtedly will be the most elaborate and expensive effort ever made to launch a full-sized newspaper. Not yet given a name, the first issue is scheduled to come off the press December 1.

An ardent interventionist and supporter of President Roosevelt, Mr. Field was inspired to return to his native city and back the Tribune by the last-day-of-the-Tribune and its publisher, Colonel Robert R. McCormick. No expense is being spared in preparations for giving the Tribune its first real challenge.

"THE TRIB" PROFITABLE One of the most profitable newspaper properties in the country, the Tribune, as it is popularly known, now has a monopoly in the Chicago morning field. It has been without morning opposition since the Hearst AM paper folded up several years ago. With a circulation of more than a million daily throughout the middle western area, it is reported to have made a profit of $6,700,000 even during the depression year of 1933.

Both its news columns and its editorial page have carried consistent and often times unscrupulous attacks on the administration's foreign policy. Only recently it became necessary for President Roosevelt at one of his press conferences to expose a baseless attack it made on the administration of lease-lend funds. Shortly before that, Majority Leader Barkley took the floor of the senate to charge the paper with fraud in reporting on the meeting between Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill.

Naturally the new Chicago paper to be started will carry the full blessing of the Roosevelt administration.

STARTING FROM SCRATCH Unlike most new newspaper ventures, the publishers are not taking over an existing plant and organization to be used as a nucleus for expanding operations. They are starting out from scratch. An entire editorial and business force is being assembled from the ground up. A staff of some of the best writers in the country is being formed. Its editors have promised that the paper will be more nearly staff written than any large publication in the country.

Mr. Evans, a native Texan and close friend of Jesse Jones, secretary of commerce and federal loan administrator, will be the publisher, dividing his time between Chicago and Nashville. For managing editor he and Mr. Field have secured the services of Rex Smith, capable former editor of Newsweek magazine.

IN WASHINGTON One of the most elaborate newspaper bureaus in Washington is being set up. Bascom Timmons, long-time correspondent for many Texas papers and representative of the Evans Nashville Tennessean, is heading it up. Raids have been made on the press services and other bureaus for some of their best men. Turner Catledge was brought over from the New York Times at a salary of $25,000 a year with a five-year contract. From the United Press the paper got its White House correspondent, Thomas F. Reynolds, and from the INS came Cecil Dickson, who will cover proceedings on the house side of the capitol. Counting the Timmons press organization, the Washington staff will number some 17 men, the second largest of any nonpress service news bureau here.

H. R. Knickerbocker, former Hearst foreign correspondent, is organizing the foreign staff. Catledge will join him in London for a while at the start.

Only someone of Mr. Field's great wealth could afford the costly arrangements being made. A descendant of the famous Chicago merchant and founder of the Field fortune, he has already inherited one estate of nearly $100,000,000. Two years from now, when he reaches the age of 50, he will come into another trust of $100,000,000.

PROFIT NOT ESSENTIAL The profit motive, therefore, will not be the controlling factor, although the new publication, a full-sized newspaper in every respect, will be out to prove a success. Other reasons have prompted Mr. Field to go into the venture. A firm believer in the course followed by the President in steering the country through the perilous times, he has thrust upon the world, he feels that the reading public of the great, strapping middle western metropolis should be given a choice of two morning newspapers, one of which reflects the sympathetic treatment of the administration's foreign policy.

It will be interesting to watch the battle when it begins.

By RALPH T. JONES.

Traffic Laws

By the States.

Every day, as increasing contacts and improving transportation communication grow, the nation into greater and greater unity, the handicap imposed by states jealous of their lawmaking and law enforcing prerogatives becomes greater.

We have had striking evidence of the evil that may be caused by state jealousies in the various restrictions of interstate commerce imposed by a multitude of license fees and other forms of what is virtually state tariffs, imposed at the state lines.

One of the most troublesome of these state fee-tariffs is that of the license fee on motor trucks, as well as the varying restrictions on size, weight, lighting and other incidents.

The need for uniform laws, all over the nation, in many of our affairs, is growing greater. It is about time, regardless of that ancient shibboleth, "states' rights," that we recognized this is one nation and there should be no difference in the way a man is treated in what state he is resident or visitor.

The need for uniform traffic regulations and laws is one of the crying needs of the day. It is this lack of uniformity between the different states, competent engineers of safety have declared, that is responsible for a considerable portion of our annual heavy death toll upon the highways.

"What You Don't Know May Kill You."

Recently the Woman's Home Companion has been campaigning for national uniformity in traffic laws, in order to reduce that traffic death toll. In the current issue, Arthur Bartlett, well-known magazine writer, tells of some of his experiences on a special tour to check conditions. He states that, insofar as traffic laws go, the old saying "What you don't know won't hurt you," should be changed to read, "What you don't know may kill you."

"You cannot cross a state line today," Bartlett writes, "no matter what states are involved, without putting yourself in jeopardy of arrest or even death, if you assume that you are to go right on operating your car the way you were supposed to do in the last state you were in. Speed laws will almost certainly be different. Hand signaling rules will probably be so different that you won't know what they mean."

Bartlett explains that in some states he couldn't park on the highway, and could therefore assume a clear road ahead, while in others there was no law against it. In some states he could pass on hills; in others not. Laws on use of spotlights, and even on reporting accidents, varied widely at variance.

"Fortunately I didn't have any accidents," he writes, "but I came close to it at least once, and that was because of a traffic regulation quirk with which I wasn't familiar. It was as I was entering Pittsburgh. A green light at an intersection turned to green and yellow. Trying to be a good driver I slowed up, ready to stop. Nobody else slowed up in the slightest and, while cars roared by me, the one directly behind me gave me a smart bump. I was wrong, because I didn't know the system. In Pittsburgh, it seems, green and yellow just mean that there won't be time for pedestrians to cross. How is a stranger expected to know?"

Why Can't All Get Together?

Emphasizing again that "what you don't know may kill you," Bartlett asks why the states can't get together on the simple rules of motoring and thus remove one of the greatest causes of deadly confusion and ignorance.

"For 17 years the way has been pointed out," he states. "The Uniform Code, drawn up and wholeheartedly recommended by the country's leading traffic engineers, highway authorities and safety experts, has been there for the taking. Our states have dabbled in it, taking a bit here, a bit there—and still failing to make sense out of our country's laws as a whole. Not one state has yet adopted it in toto."

Why? Because you and I, whose voices, as a democracy, are the ones that must be obeyed, have not yet made it clear to our law-makers and local officials that we want them to get together, lay aside their personal notions and give us rules that everyone will know and understand."

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, November 19, 1916:

"Washington, November 18.—President Wilson told a delegation from the American Federation of Labor late today that all class feeling in America should be wiped out by the establishment of justice 'with a heart in it.'"

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Thursday, November 19, 1891:

"Al G. Fields and his minstrel men delighted a big crowd at De-Give's last night."

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

Dale Carnegie said, "According to a survey made in a medium-sized eastern city, the thing that people as a whole most desire is friends. Mental development was next and far down the list came the desire for riches."

Although there is this overwhelming desire to make friends, there are millions of our citizens who have no friends. The ability

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Wrong Anyway

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. Most of us seem determined to deceive ourselves on the fundamental issue in the coal strike by confusing the case with considerations of national defense.

That is easily the most pompous and balled-up sentence that has been published in this country outside the Nation and the New Republic since the turn of the century, but I have phrased it backward and both ways against the middle and it makes no better sense. Nevertheless, it is just what I mean.

The true point is that the union would be just as wrong in this dispute if there were no military emergency. The union is trying to compel men to join a private organization which is much more than a mere labor union, subject to arbitrary rules and orders of subordinates beholden to a dictator. It is a political organization and a sub-government of national scope and it is too big and powerful for the laws pertaining to unions. These laws pertaining to unions are few, feeble and old-fashioned and the attempt to deal with such organizations as the miners of the CIO through such laws is like trying to control a fast car with a halter and rope or a roadhog freight truck with an elephant hook.

This Is Mistake

If we say that Wrong John Lewis must not do this or that because a military emergency exists we are saying in very plain effect that it would be all right for him to do the same thing in the absence of such an emergency, and that is the big mistake. Even in times of peace Wrong John has no right to force American citizens from lawful employment for failure to join his union, and if we don't insist on that joint in the emergency we plainly threaten the American citizen with such compulsion and, as President Roosevelt has finally and reluctantly acknowledged, with a phase of the Hitlerian dictatorship, when peace arrives again.

That is a hell of a prospect to offer American citizens as a lure to sacrifice so that Hitler may be destroyed. Destroy Hitler, we say to our people, and when we have all made the necessary sacrifices for that purpose and vanquished the dictator we will place ourselves under the dictatorial rule of Wrong John Lewis or some other political unionist.

People Don't Know

Our people would not even argue with Lewis or any other unionist, on this and several other points of fundamental right if they were educated in the facts of unionism. And their ignorance of these facts is partly the fault of our press and partly the fault of our politicians in the national field. A good deal of blame lies with the present national government, too, because debate has been kept down and every attempt to bring bills into congress for discussion and a vote has been beaten by silent orders from the White House.

The result is that our people are just beginning to realize that unionism is not what they have always carelessly thought it was. It is a huge business and a huge political movement.

Bigger Than Government

In West Virginia right now, Lewis is bigger than the state government, and is organizing the state employees into CIO unions, which means that when the inevitable demand is made for the closed shop, a private organization, ostensibly a labor union, will be demanding a percentage of the wages of all state employees and will require that all employees join the union but will not have to give any account of its political activities or expenditures. It will be a Nazi party running an American state in the guise of an organization of free workers, with goons or Brown Shirts, known as pickets, to enforce its will.

But, in the presence of the emergency which certainly does exist, a quotation from Bill Shirer's Berlin Diary is shockingly pertinent.

On August 5, only last year, Shirer was in France with the armies of the Nazi conqueror and he wrote:

"French coal mines are working again. They were not destroyed by the French this time as in 1914. A photograph in one of the papers shows French miners unloading coal at a pit. Watching over them is a steel-helmeted German soldier with a bayonet. Their Moscow-dominated Communist party and their unions told them not to work and not to fight when France was free. Now they work under German bayonets."

to make friends is a science. Some people possess a natural ability that seems to surround them with the right people. Others who appear to be equally equipped in every way spend a life of loneliness.

The art of making and holding friends can be developed. The first step is to realize that friendship is not a one-way street. You must be able to give more than you expect to receive; not worldly goods, but attentive consideration; consideration of the other person's wishes.

You should not confuse real friendship with fair-weather friendships. Neither should you waste your time trying to push yourself into a group whose interests are foreign to your own.

Dancing organizations, church activities, and outdoor recreation groups are excellent places for young people to cultivate friendship. Reading clubs, libraries, civic, political, and fraternal organizations offer splendid facilities for mature persons.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

STEEL MEETING BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 18.—Men, emotions and actions ebb and flow swiftly in times of all stress and labor stress offers no different reactions.

Monday night I saw men hurry from a steel meeting to go to the gates of the great Fairfield plant near here, planning to halt all AFL and all nonunion members, an estimated 2,000 of 12,500 men who work at the plant. This followed the closing of the coal mines in the morning.

I stood with other newspapermen at two of the gates. You could smell death in the cold night air and in fumes of smoke and gas which blew softly across the valley, lit by the heavy red glow of the open hearths.

The death was at the hips of deputies and in the Tommy guns held by men in parked cars near the gates as the sheriff of Jefferson county, backed by 28 special deputies, told the men that any effort to halt men going to work would mean violence. Death was also in the hates and emotions. You could smell it and feel it in the air.

The steel workers weren't fools. Their captains sent them back. Within 20 minutes the widely advertised "card inspection" at the gates was broken and the men went white-lipped and angry back to their hall.

That was about 10:30 o'clock. It was near 2 o'clock this morning when they finally adjourned. They adjourned on a Tuesday which had been beaten five times but which the leaders patiently pushed through, wearing out the inflammatory speeches of a half dozen men in the 400 present who wanted to strike the plant that very minute and leave the steel in the open hearths and the pig-iron in the blast furnaces, an act which would have cost a million dollars and six months' time to repair. Leaders talked this down.

The resolution of this morning was to the effect that if the deputies were not removed and card inspection permitted, the men would vote on striking the plant. As I write this, late this afternoon, there were conflicting reports of behind-the-scenes moves dictated by the CIO officials still in Washington. No one will know until midnight tonight.

ACHILLES HEEL One hears all sorts of things. The AFL men

CIO men have been slugged and beaten recently in some sections of the state. They charge the AFL with the beatings.

If the unions have an Achilles heel it would be, in my opinion, those men who have been forced into the ranks by intimidation. A great many men have joined because of threats.

If the big Jests comes and if these men believe they will be protected, many of them will go to work. If they are not sure, they will remain out, even though they want to work. This number is not large. Men who are not partisans say it is not more than 25 to 35 per cent.

There are those who have come to have doubts about some of their leadership. The Alabama workers know that workers in other sections are making more. They have seen, in the past two weeks, that their local men take orders from higher-up leaders in the east. That disturbs them a little. This labor is native labor. There is almost no foreign representation. All the miners and steel workers are men who have lived here all their lives and whose roots go deep back into the hills and the years.

The miners have more solidarity than the steel workers. It is useless to argue with them. They know what they were making in 1933 and they know what they are making now. Without them the CIO steel unions would not be nearly so strong. The United Mine Workers are present to bolster any sign of weakness in the SWOC. They are the men who may bring a national stoppage of railroads and industry.

There were signs of weakness after the deputies had broken the card inspection. There was confusion. Some left for home. The more loyal remained. A few were drinking. None had been drinking before. It was pay day.

That gave the leaders concern. They were forceful about it. What gave me concern today was to see the Alabama State Guard come in to camp, to be ready for trouble.

Many of these men were sitting about drinking. One could add that to the labor men who might drink tonight and see a powder magazine, needing only a match. The guard drinking was reported and steps taken to stop it. How effective it and that of labor will be remains to be seen.

SWOC MEETING I attended the SWOC meeting in company with reporters from the Birmingham newspapers and the Associated Press. We stood outside the hall while a resolution was offered and debated as to whether or not we would be admitted.

We were. The hall was crowded. We were asked not to telephone from the meeting. We didn't. The chairman was Earl Crowder, of the TCI plant.

One of the men who had been beaten at Tuscaloosa in the AFL fight was introduced. He talked plainly but without any inflammatory calls for revenge.

Mine workers and steel workers talked, insisting the card inspection was proper. They argued the union had got them benefits and a vacation and they owed the union something.

I was struck with the obvious patience of the chairmen and other leaders. They were so technical about the right to discuss resolutions, and so exact about the seconding of them, that it seemed to drag.

The meeting was fairly and ably conducted but one could see always that leadership was needed. I never saw so clearly before what forces could be unleashed were there no leadership. It was a most impressive illustration of the great desirability of intelligent leadership.

The leaders had a difficult time getting over their motion to adjourn and hold another meeting. Men less patient and less able would have had a strike on their hands and maybe bloodshed at 2 o'clock this morning.

I wish I were one of those persons who are so sure about things and to whom certainties are easy. I do not know what the solution is. I still do not think it is troops. They would solve nothing and that ought to be apparent to anyone who will think about it. Army management would be another thing. It might do.

Only Those Presidents Were Great Who Had the Courage To Use Their Power

By ROBERT QUILLLEN.

When the saintly but very human old priest in "The Keys of the Kingdom" had learned the virtual impossibility of converting Chinese to his faith without buying them, he made a decision that many another in real life had made before him. He established a school for orphans; if he couldn't convert adults into Christians, he would begin with children and raise his own.

When Mussolini and Stalin and Hitler, each in his turn, found it almost impossible to overcome the settled ideas and convictions of mature men and women, they adopted the expedient of drilling their ideas into juvenile heads before there was any competition. With caseless propaganda, formulated by the shrewdest of psychologists, they shaped immature minds into a pattern that no later influence could change.

"Oh, I awoke with the streak of dawn with my little radio turned on and the fruits of my unremitting toil were spent for the proper grease and oil and to fill my tank with pepped-up gas and to get rid of . . . but let that pass!"

—OLLIE REEVES.

Tosti to Reeves

I am sure you have read the above disconsolate wail by Ollie Reeves. If you haven't you probably won't bother with this either. "Reading copy" on it—and improving it here and there by a brilliant thought, I caught myself singing it. That is, what I call singing. You might not agree.

But, says I to me, just what is that meter—that rhythm? That bit of melancholy? That—oh, everything. It's hauntingly familiar and I know Ollie stole it from somebody and I'm going to check on it and maybe find the author and make a deal with him and sue Ollie and split the proceeds, if any.

Then I got it. Do you know Tosti's "Goodbye, Summer"? That's it.

No, I don't mean Ollie lifted a lyric from Tosti. But he certainly stole the music—which doesn't appear here. So I'm afraid nobody could sue anybody, because Mr. Tosti has long been dead and his stuff is in what the dramatic and movie folk call the "public domain." Which means anybody can use it. Like "Hamlet," for instance.

But, if you do happen to have a record of that number of Tosti's—mine is by John McCormack—but it is on your phonograph and read Mr. Reeves. And sing.

Ollie is fond of music—I understand he pounds a wicked piano on occasions. Whether he ever heard this Tosti number I cannot say. Perhaps he is a reincarnation of Tosti. I wouldn't know. Mr. Tosti having passed, along with Queen Victoria, before I even knew a fiddle had four strings.

But you can take that first stanza of Mr. Reeves' contribution and "Goodbye Summer" and the words and music—and the general idea—fit like a pair of old shoes.

Grand old number that Tosti's "Goodbye." Very sad. About the leaves turning gold and falling down. As Mr. McGill remarked in his column a few days ago, I would like to weep into my beer—if I had any beer.

Crowning Insult

Britannia still rules the waves—or thinks she does. According to a little story picked up from the Valdosta Times—and I don't know where it started:

"A British battleship sank a German cruiser. Quite a few of the Germans were rescued. The British captain emphasized that these captives were to be treated with the utmost courtesy and respect."

"The next morning they were lined up on deck for inspection. One big German sailor had a black eye. The captain asked his men for an explanation. One little British sailor confessed that he was to blame. When he called you a British pig, I did nothing. When he called the King and Queen dirty so and so's, I still did nothing. But when he spat in our ocean, boy! I let him have it."

Probe of Child's Grady Death Asked

Investigation of the death October 29 of Benjamin F. Meeks, 7, at Grady hospital, has been asked in resolutions filed yesterday in city council by the Atlanta Federation of Trades.

The measure was turned over to a special council group composed of Alderman Lester Brewer and Councilmen J. Allen Couch and Frank Wilson.

Circumstances of the death as related in the resolution are: Meeks was stricken on October 27 and a physician called. He wrote two prescriptions and the family took them to Grady hospital to be filled. Attached at Grady, according to the resolution, said one of the prescriptions could not be filled because some of the ingredients were not in stock.

Two days later the child was worse and the mother carried him to the hospital, where he died at the receiving desk, the charges state.

Good Morning

"THE DESPISERY."

A friendly old Negro said the other day: "I never puts anybody in my despisery." Will Rogers once remarked that he never really knew a man whom he did not like.

Isn't that pretty good advice for our present stressful situation? I was glad to have this word from my cherished old Negro friend, and I shall never forget what Will Rogers said.

It is very easy to despise people with whom you honestly and sincerely disagree about things that you consider very vital. I guess it is human nature.

Take this matter of our national defense program, for example. I find it mighty hard to maintain an out and out friendly attitude toward certain individuals that appear to me to be deliberately hindering the program.

But my old Negro friend says that he does not put anyone in his "despisy." I wonder, honestly I wonder, if I could like John L. Lewis. That is the test for me right now.

Jesus has a word about this matter. He says that we are not to despise them—that we are to pray for them.

Have you tried praying for Hitler? Or Lewis? Or Lindbergh? Or Wheeler?

I guess that is where the water hits the wheel. That doesn't mean that I am to compromise my convictions. It does mean that I am not to despise these men with whom I so strongly disagree.

I asked the old Negro about Hitler.

"Well, sir," he replied, "I ain't seen him, but I has two gran-sons in de Army, an' I prays fur dem, an' I pray fur de peepul what bro't dis terribil thing on de wurl. An' ef we're correct in sposin' dat Hitler as de main sping in de wheel, din I say de quikes' way to whip him es to ax' de Lawd to

RAIL TELEGRAPHERS OBJECT TO EDITORIAL

Editor Constitution: Your editorial of November 8, captioned, "Why, Why?" in which you call members of the railway unions saboteurs for their effort to get an increase which no one with the feeling of justice to all can deny, living expenses have increased to such an extent that it is necessary that wages be increased to meet these increases or place our families in slavery or a condition at least equal to this.

We note you state the minimum pay for the common workers amongst us to be $3.06. We wonder when you obtained these figures. Evidently you are not very familiar with the conditions of the working people of your locality. We are telegraph operators for one line in Atlanta at a salary of $4.20 per day, or 86 cents per day less than you quote the minimum of common workers and we don't think anyone can class telegraphers as so common. There are other operators working from $3.60 per day up to the rate which we are drawing, which is about the maximum for us.

We also note you say the railroad workers are willing to pay the defense bills out of some other persons' pocket, or words to that effect. Mr. Editor, who pays your part of the defense? Isn't it a fact that you, even before the cost of living increased very much in proportion, increased the price of your paper from 20 to 25 cents per week, or a 20 per cent increase? If the railroad workers are committing acts of sabotage for asking an increase, where does this place you except in the front line trenches of Hitler for increasing your rates at the expense of the public without consulting anyone except your brother newspapers.

Do you know who pays the increase of 20 per cent which you forced on the public? Isn't it a fact the workers pay it. You may argue the advertising from business people pay the bill. However, deeming this to be true to a certain extent, who buys goods from the business people that enables them to advertise in your paper?

We think the railroad workers require an apology from you for such absurd and untrue statements.

NOW NO TIME TO PLAY AT PARTISAN POLITICS

Editor, Constitution: I cannot refrain from congratulating you and The Constitution upon your forward-looking editorial in this morning's paper entitled "Looking at 1944."

Why is it not in order for the President to utilize a man of such outstanding ability as Wendell Willkie in his own administration? If he should be appointed to a place in the administration similar to that held by Barney Baruch in Wilson's time, and be given the necessary authority, it would do more than anything I can imagine right now to strengthen our war effort and instill confidence in the final result. It might be just as well to have Mr. Baruch as a sort of chairman of the board.

The record of the Republicans in the Roosevelt cabinet at the present time is to be commended. Many of us in the past have been, on occasion, more or less annoyed by the "fussiness" of Harold Ickes, but who among us would now fail to accord him all credit for his refusal, three or four years ago, to give the Germans even a small supply of helium?

We should all take off our hats to Secretary Stimson, who, among other things, had the courage recently to publicly acknowledge a mistake he made in his controversy with Senator Wheeler. And as to Secretary Knox, we feel he has been cooperating with vigorous Navy policy.

This is no time to play partisan politics. "The best man for the place" should be the watchword of our administration.

1941 LOOKS AT 1916

THINGS have changed a lot in 25 years—yet there is much that is the same.

In 1916 it was Preparedness; in 1941, National Defense. But now the scale is bigger, the pace faster. There was pressure on the telephone business then. The pressure is infinitely greater now. New training camps; new aviation fields; new munition plants; new shipyards and many other defense industries—all need telephones. Everyone is moving faster . . . and, when a nation hurries, it does so by telephone. Southern Bell spent about $4,600,000 on new construction in 1916. It is spending over $51,000,000 in 1941.

The entire Southern Bell organization serving nine Southern states, is giving "first call" to Defense. We believe you would want it that way.

'Bug' Charges Follow Plea Of Floy A. Ray

Former Realty Firm Secretary To Learn Fate Today.

Testimony of Miss Floy A. Ray, a secretary for a realty company who pleaded guilty last week in Fulton superior court to obtaining $14,450 from her employers for the purpose of playing the "bug," yesterday resulted in 10 grand jury indictments against nine men on the misdemeanor charge that they "did keep, maintain and operate a lottery, known as the number game, for the hazarding of money."

Then men indicted were: L. P. Whitfield, Fred Martin, Henry Hodgson, L. B. Hopkins alias H. B. Hopkins, W. D. Mills, Aggie Whitaker, Henry White, Negro, and "two other Negroes known only as "Carl" and "Paul."

Punchboard Charge. Two indictments were returned against Whitaker, one brought on a lottery charge and the other charging that he operated a punchboard for the "hazarding of money."

If convicted of the charges for which they were indicted, these men will be sentenced to serve 12 months, or pay a fine of $1,000 and serve six months.

Miss Ray testified before the grand jury for about three hours. She was accompanied to the court house by her attorney, Frank Doughman. She will appear before Judge A. L. Etheridge at noon today for disposal of the 10 counts of forgery, uttering forged checks and embezzlement against her.

While out on bond, Miss Ray secured a position with a lawyer in Houston, Tex. She appeared in court two weeks ago, with a large number of character witnesses, for purpose of pleading guilty. At that time, her plea was opposed by Solicitor General Boykin until she had told what became of the money she embezzled.

Hearing Delayed. Judge Etheridge delayed the hearing until last Tuesday week, and, on the following Thursday, she made, in an attorney's office, a sworn statement regarding her "bug" operations.

At that time, two prominent clergymen and other well-known church workers requested that she be given a suspended sentence and allowed to rehabilitate herself. The state did not oppose these pleas for clemency, but merely requested that action be postponed until she had testified before the grand jury.

Blandy Statement Draws a Protest

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(AP)—A statement by Rear Admiral W. H. P. Blandy in an address at Macdonald, Ga., Saturday, "merits punishment by the Navy," Morris Milgram, national secretary of the Workers Defense League, telegraphed Secretary Knox last night.

Admiral Blandy, chief of the Navy Bureau of Ordnance, dedicating a Navy ordnance plant at the Georgia city, declared he hoped that if workers were approached by any agitators they would "ride them out of town on a rail as if they were wearing swastikas on their sleeves."

Milgram wired the Navy secretary demanding "that the Navy repudiate the incitement to violence against union organizers uttered" by Blandy.

New B-19 Record: 70 Tons in the Air

MARCH FIELD, Cal., Nov. 18.—(AP)—The Army's giant transport, the B-19, has completed a test flight under gross weight of 140,000 pounds or 70 tons—of which 13 tons was in dummy bombs, the rest in fuel, military equipment and crew members.

Officials of Douglas Aircraft Company, builders of the landplane, claimed this was the heaviest load, military or commercial, ever lifted.

Lieutenant Colonel Stanley M. Umstead was at the controls. The plane used only 3,500 of March Field's 6,000-foot runway and was in the air within a few seconds.

Nazi Air Chief Killed Testing Secret Weapon

Udet, Flying Ace of First World War, Was Only 45.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—(AP)—Colonel General Ernst Udet, German air hero of the first great war and charged in this conflict with the task of keeping Adolf Hitler's air force supreme, has been killed while testing a secret weapon, it was announced officially today.

Udet, 45, and quartermaster general of the air force, died yesterday of injuries before he could be taken to a hospital. Adolf Hitler ordered a state funeral in his honor and the German press spoke proudly of his bravery.

"He never left it to others to test new equipment but always took that job himself," the Boersen Zeitung said.

This was the only explanation as to how a colonel general, next in rank to a marshal, could be killed during a war-time test. Inquirers were told the "new weapon" was a military secret, hence no details of the accident would be furnished.

Udet's death was a heavy blow to Nazi air leaders, who credited him with many technical improvements, among them the first floating rescue buoys floated in the English channel so downed fliers could rescue themselves from the water.

As chief engineer and head of supply his job was to spur designers and craftsmen to peak performance.

Field Marshal General Hermann Goering, a comrade of the "glue and wire" World War combat days when Udet shot down 62 enemy planes, had promoted Udet rapidly in his Reich air ministry.

Udet filled in the peace years with stunt flying. On a trip to the United States in 1931 he dived his plane under New York's Hell Gate railway bridge across the East river in a type of plane he never had flown before.

He also participated in the National Air Races at Cleveland and while there he met Walter B. Wanamaker, of Columbus, Ohio, whom he had shot down in 1918, then landing to extricate the American from the wreckage.

Mother Seeks Aid in Finding Missing Daughter

Public appeal to help her find her attractive daughter, Evelyn Cecilia Fields, 14, who has been missing since November 5, was made yesterday by Mrs. George W. Fields, of 576 Willow street, northeast.

Evelyn left her home in the morning two weeks ago today without saying where she was going. Her parents were informed she was seen in front of the Atlanta theater at 9:30 o'clock in the morning, and again the following Sunday afternoon in front of the Fox theater. Her family, including her mother and father and a brother, George W. Fields Jr., have received no word.

Her mother said police, social service organizations, and relatives have been asked to help find her.

Evelyn was a student at O'Keefe Junior High school and a member of the First Baptist church. She is described as having wavy brown hair and blue eyes. She wore a blue cloth dress with a gold-striped belt, black suede pumps and carried a black purse.

Your Daughter Has a Right to Know

It is every mother's duty to tell her daughter physical facts. How much better that she learn them from you, rather than from girls her own age. In feminine hygiene, facts may be distorted, or wholly untrue. Result, many diseases are caused by over-strong solutions of acids which can actually burn or scar delicate tissues. Today, there is no need to use such deadly solutions. Science has given us Zonite. Non-poisonous, non-caustic, yet kills germs, bacteria on contact. Actually destroys undesirable odors. Protects personal cleanliness. Most important, safe for delicate tissues. Over 20,000,000 bottles already bought. Free Book Tells Intimate Facts. Give your daughter this frank written booklet, "Feminine Hygiene Today," which you can get FREE, sent to you postpaid in plain wrapper. Try This Old Home-Mixed Cough Relief. Surprising!

Child Could Make It. No Cooking. Big Saving. You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, and in just a moment, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned—your mother probably used it—but for real results, it can't be beaten.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special component of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Miss McDougall And Miss Harmon Honored at Tea

Misses Josephine McDougall and Margaret Harmon, two of the season's loveliest debutantes, shared honors yesterday at the elaborate tea given by Mrs. William H. Barnwell and her daughter, Mrs. Barnwell Dudley, at their home on Rumson way.

The hostesses and honor guests received standing in the living room before the handsome mantel, which was banked with colorful autumn leaves and other foliage. Swags of bamboo vine were festooned across the ledge of the mantel, which was centered with an antique hand-painted bowl filled with a graceful arrangement of gold chrysanthemums.

Miss McDougall was gowned in chartreuse crepe fashioned with a brief jacket. Miss Harmon chose a model of Irish green crepe belted in gold, and accented by a huge gold button at the neckline. Mrs. Barnwell received her guests wearing an accordion belted gown of turquoise crepe, and Mrs. Dudley wore white silk jersey cloth adorned and belted in gold kid. Shimmering clusters of gardenias adorned each costume.

A profusion of gold chrysanthemums featured the decorations throughout the reception rooms, a pink and white color motif having been used in the dining room. The table was overlaid with an exquisite Italian cutwork cloth, centered with a silver bowl filled with pink roses, tuberoses and snapdragons. A crystal figurine arose from the center of the arrangement, which was flanked by silver candelabra holding lighted ivory tapers.

Mrs. Howard See presided at the silver coffee urn which graced one end of the table, and Mrs. Walter Hill poured tea from the silver service placed at the other end.

Assisting in entertaining were Mrs. Calhoun McDougall, Mrs. Howard Harmon, mothers of the honor guests; Miss Mary Morris, and Mesdames Ward Wright Jr., Hilton Wall, Lawrence Benedict, Haines Harrell, Richard Tomlin, C. Robert Mitchell, Hagood Clark Sr., William Akers and Edward Chapman Sr.

Calling during the afternoon were 75 members of the married and unmarried social contingents, including the entire membership of the Debutante Club.

Red Devils and 'Hells Belles' To Attend Driving Club Party

By SALLY FORTH.

♦♦♦ INVITATIONS in the form of blueprints, which are significant of the Architectural Society of Georgia Tech, will be mailed to guests attending the first Beaux-Arts ball. The theme of the ball is "Go to Hell," and the colorful event takes place Friday evening at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Batch Miller will be garbed as "His Satanic Majesty," and red devils galore will dance around his throne. His twin brother, John Miller, whom people cannot distinguish from Batch, is the popular president of the society.

An enormous red papier mache head of a devil, with his mouth stretched wide open, will be erected in front of the fireplace at the far end of the club ballroom. John Miller will stage the lead-out figure with pretty Jane Carmichael, and they will enter the ballroom through the red devils' mouth.

Other decorations will be suggestive of the theme of the ball, such as placards reading "Keep Them Frying."

The following verse is printed in black letters on the invitations mailed to the girls, who are designated as "Hell's Belles," and who will wear all sorts of costumes to the affair:

"Hell's Belles and keep 'em frying,
Some are dead and others dying,
Hell is hot, the devil's den,
You dress up, or you can't get in."

Dinner will be served at 7:30 o'clock, with dancing beginning at 10 and continuing until 2 o'clock. Music will be furnished by George Leonard's orchestra.

Mrs. Robert A. Long Writes On Delinquency Committee

The importance of the undertaking of the Atlanta Council of Parent-Teacher Associations through its special committee on delinquency was given national significance in a signed article by Mrs. Robert A. Long, president of Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers, which appears in the November issue of the National Parent-Teacher Magazine.

Mrs. Long's article states in part: "The parent-teacher movement scored again when, nine months ago, the president of the Atlanta Council of Parent-Teacher Associations appointed a special committee to study juvenile delinquency in Greater Atlanta."

"Immediate attention has been focused upon this problem by the closing of the Fulton County Industrial Home for Boys, which meant throwing back upon the public school system scores of youngsters for whom special provision must be made to prevent delinquency."

"Investigation revealed there is a very serious gap in dealing with delinquencies, due to factors beyond the control of the juvenile court on the one hand and the schools on the other."

"Scarcely had the committee undertaken a conscientious and realistic appraisal of the facts when it was realized that juvenile delinquency is a subject so important and of such widespread interest that no one organization can do justice to the problems involved."

It was realized further that there must be concerted, co-ordinated effort on the part of the whole community—that the subject is one that concerns the welfare agencies, the medical profession, the church, the school, the housing agencies, the organizations interested in good citizenship, and the courts.

"An interview with the municipal court judge served to remind us of the all-too-familiar causes of juvenile delinquency: poverty, the broken home, immorality, crime in the home, feeble-mindedness, insufficient guardianship, and drunken parents. Case studies assembled in co-operation with the census and attendance department of the schools confirmed the gravity of these causative factors."

"The committee made a study of the Montefiore Special School, a school for boys operated by the school system of Chicago. It was found that the boys were transferred to the school by the school department, not by court commitment; that 376 schools in the Chicago system contribute to the Montefiore Special School; and that 28 of the largest city school systems were studied by the Chicago system before the special school was organized and established in 1929."

"Our special committee, accordingly, recognized as its ultimate objective (and so urged in its petition to two succeeding grand juries) the establishment in Atlanta of an institution or school to meet the needs of Atlanta in arresting and preventing juvenile delinquency as far as is humanly possible."

"Both grand juries concurred in the main in the findings of the parent-teacher committee. In the May-June presentations a detailed analysis was made of the basis upon which such a special school might be established and organized."

"Thus the first practical steps were taken in co-operative effort to meet a community problem. Action upon the recommendations urged by the parent-teacher group and two grand juries now rests with the county commissioners and the city and county boards of education."

"The Atlanta Constitution comments editorially: 'The P.-T. A. wants a school for these children, a 24-hour parental school. What is wrong with our government and our political leaders that the P.-T. A. can't get it? Why haven't we had it for a long span of time?'"

"In making a beginning toward facing and meeting an urban problem of grave importance the Atlanta council has afforded an excellent example of what the movement can accomplish when to its warm-hearted concern for the welfare of all children is added intelligent and meaningful civic action."

Salt Pork and Beans for Thrift

Homespun as a quilting bee is this All-American dish of baked beans and salt pork.

By Sally Saver.

One of the most homespun and picturesque dishes of America is salt pork and beans. This dish came into being along with quilting bees and log rollings, and is as hearty and hospitable as were those get-togethers. We must call attention to its economy, because you'll recognize it as down-to-earth-bottom when compared with cost. Here's how to make the dish as pictured:

Salt Pork and Beans.
1 quart dry navy beans
1 1-2 pounds salt pork or fat bacon (in one piece)
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon mustard
1-3 cup molasses
Soak beans overnight in cold water. Drain and cover with 2 quarts fresh water, and cook slowly for about 1 1-2 hours until tender. Put in a large baking dish. Prepare salt pork by removing rind and scoring in squares. Bury the pork in the beans, leaving only the scored portion exposed. Mix salt, sugar, mustard, molasses and 1 cup boiling water, and pour over the beans, adding enough additional water to cover beans, if necessary. Cover the dish and bake 6 to 8 hours in a slow oven, 250 degrees, adding a little hot water as needed to keep moist. During the last hour of baking uncover dish to brown top.

With this serve a well-seasoned cole slaw and baked apples. The apples can be baked in the oven with the beans. Add hot corn muffins and there's an inexpensive balanced meal as you'll ever find. Plenty of taste appeal, too.

For help with any food problem or for special recipes, write or phone Sally Saver, care The Constitution or WA. 6565.

Shirley Temple has long made little girls conscious of charm and beauty and inspired them to learn the fundamentals of beauty care. Shirley is back on the screen again in "Kathleen."

Mild Shampoo and Brushing Insure Shining Hair

By Winifred Ware.

Little girls become interested in beauty early in life, and it's right that they should. The fundamentals of beauty can become habits that are second nature for them. Children's hair needs the same care as grownup's so that it may keep the lights and sheen of youth. Cleansing and stimulation are the important things. Youngster's hair should be washed regularly with a mild shampoo that's easy to use. Shampoos should be given not oftener than once a week and not less than every two weeks.

Liquid shampoos are best. I know of one as mild as baby soap; indeed it's made from castile. It is simple to use and easy to rinse out of the hair. In washing the hair, concentrate on rubbing the lather into the scalp with the cushions of the finger tips. Rub particularly around the hair line. Thorough rinsing includes four or five warm water rinses and one cold water rinse.

The shampoo I mentioned isn't expensive. A 50c bottle contains four ounces, and since you dilute it with an equal amount of water before using it, it goes quite far. Still more economical is the $1.25 size, which contains a full pound.

Hair should be dried by rubbing with a rough towel, preferably in the sun. It should not be dried under direct artificial heat. Older girls who want to let their hair or roll it up should let it get nearly dry before doing so.

Brushing is also mighty important for children's hair. It does double good for it tends to normalize the oil glands whether hair be oily or dry, and it keeps the hair clean between shampoos. It should be a routine affair. Like brushing the teeth, morning and night. It's easier for children if they have a system about brushing. Teach them to brush upward and outward with long strokes. Let them count 25 strokes each for top, side and back hair.

I'll be glad to tell you more about the shampoo mentioned if you call Winifred Ware at WA 6565 or write in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Effects of Ultraviolet Light Prove Injurious to Workers

By Dr. William Brady.

A manufacturer of metal implements, for information concerning harmful effects of exposure of the eyes to the ultra-violet rays of welding machines, and would like to know at what distance from the arc the rays may be injurious to the eyes.

It is not only the ultraviolet rays but the infrared or heat rays that are nearly or quite as injurious to the eyes. A temperature of over 7,000 degrees F. is attained by the electric arc. The intense heat as well as the intense light emitted by molten metal and molten glass causes the cataract which furnace workers, puffers, glass blowers and sheet glass makers so often develop.

Even cold ultraviolet light, however, is injurious to the eyes when exposure is excessive. For instance the "klieg eyes" of cinema workers or actors, eye inflammation (conjunctivitis) with a sensation of heat, hypersensitivity to light (photophobia) lacrimation (excessive tear secretion) and redness of the covering of the eyeball. This is caused by the ultraviolet rays from the carbon arc of the lamps used in obtaining interior pictures.

At what distance from the arc the ultraviolet rays may injure the eyes one guess is as good as another. If exposure is frequent or prolonged damage may be done at a distance of 15 or 20 feet.

Mickey Rooney Leads Movie Money Makers In Unofficial Listing

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 16.—(INS)—Unofficially I hear Mickey Rooney again will head the Motion Picture Herald's list of 10 biggest money makers. I also hear Clark Gable is second, Abbott and Costello, third, and Gene Autry, fourth. My informant says Jimmy Cagney is fifth, Spencer Tracy, sixth; Bing Crosby, seventh; Bob Hope, eighth; Bette Davis, ninth; and Ginger Rogers, tenth. Where is Dorothy Lamour? She should have a place if letters are any indication of popularity.

Interesting that Abbott and Costello and Gene Autry are so well up in front, and it only goes to prove that the average fan still enjoys westerns, and that a laugh is one of the most precious things in the world these days. Of course, I cannot in fairness to the Herald, say this list is correct. On the Hollywood reporter's list the five top feminine favorites are Bette Davis, Dorothy Lamour, Judy Garland, Alice Faye and Ginger Rogers. The male stars rank Mickey Rooney, Spencer Tracy, Gene Autry, Clark Gable and Bob Hope, with Jimmy Cagney, Abbott and Costello, Gary Cooper and Tyrone Power following.

When Loretta Young said her marriage always would come before her career she meant every word. She left for New York Saturday with her husband, Tom Lewis, after turning down two pictures—one at Para and one at Universal. Not long ago she told me she has worked ever since she was a kid and she isn't letting any movie interfere with her being with Tom. However, she is reading "Forest Ranger" by Warren Duff, an outdoor epic—and if she likes it she'll make a Paramount picture the first of the year.

Carole Lombard, who swears that she has to deny more false rumors than any star in Hollywood, (1) That she and Clark Gable are adopting twin boys, (2) That she's retiring because of ill health, (3) That she had rather than make pictures, is disproving the last one with an unusual spurt of activity. Not only is she playing a Lynn Fontanne to Jack Benny's Alfred Lunt in "To Be Or Not To Be" but Mrs. G. is very busy agent and bought a story, "Is This Love," by Helen Deutch. It's a comedy about a woman in love with love, and Arthur Lyons may sell Lombard and her story to United Artists for a Korda-made picture.

If Helen Morgan's mother and husband demand too much money, Buddy DeSylva will not bring the story of her life to the screen. Buddy wants to make the picture, but he says he cannot pay the national debt for the rights. Any biography is fraught with dangers, especially when friends are still living and must necessarily be brought into the story. I was amazed at the interest our article caused. Both Dorothy Lamour and Mary Martin fans started writing letters, and a girl in Baltimore wired for the job, saying that she had been taken out of the cast of "Sweet Adeline" because she looked so much like Helen Morgan, the star.

CHATTER IN HOLLYWOOD: The definite word made over the air that Kay Francis would elope over the week end and marry Arthur Woolman, a stock broker, amazed Kay, to put it mildly. "Why I never even heard or met this Woolman," said Kay, "and you know I do like to see the man I marry before he joins me at the altar." Now if the report had been that Kay was about to marry Hugh Fenwick there might have been some grounds in that for she goes everywhere with the affable Hugh and he has been very attentive to her, although she says she is not engaged to anyone.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: William Saroyan flew in from New York to see Phyllis Brooks and dined with her at the Brown Derby; Bruce Cabot's big romance is a sewing machine heiress in New York. The Liz Whitney romance is cold and they met accidentally at a night club in New York according to Bruce's pals; Leila Rogers, Ginger's ma, at Charley Foy's with Ray Anlaf, a rich Oregon cattleman; the gin-rummy contest at the house of Murphy is getting a big play from Hollywood's best gin-rummyers and there is plenty of competition; Paulette Goddard grounded in Austin, Texas, is still there with her mother; Estelle Taylor and Ben Black in a ringside seat at Slapsie Maxie's; Judy Canova's movie may be called "True to the Army" but she likes the Navy too; Ensign John J. Riley came down from San Francisco to see her before taking off for Manila; Marlene Dietrich's first date after she returned is with Jean Gabin; Marguerite De La Motte well remembered as one of Douglas Fairbanks' favorite leading ladies, is staging a comeback in a Columbia movie, "The Man Who Returned to Life"; Huntington Hartford III, back in our town doing the night spots with Letitia Fairbanks; Willis Hunt Jr., with attractive Elyse Curtis at the Club Trouville; John Archer, who won the gateway to Hollywood contest, and who is now in "Mile Animal" at the El Capitan, gossip says will wed Actress Marjorie Lord around Christmas.

Be Easy On A Soldier for Not Writing

Dear Dixie:

I have been very much in love with John for three years. Sometimes I think he loves me and other times he seems so indifferent that I lose all hope. When he went into the Army, he asked me to write him because I was the one and only for him. Well, I wrote him several times, and he answered, but for two months I heard nothing from him. Last week a letter came and he tells me that he is coming home for Thanksgiving and wants to see me. Of course I want to see him, but he acts so strangely that I do not know what to do. Do you think I should save him some dates for his leave? Do you think that he really means what he says? I am afraid that if I refuse him, I will lose him. GERTRUDE.

By Dixie George.

You must always remember, Gertrude, that there are some men who just will not write letters. I think your friend wants to see you, and I think he thinks a great deal of you, so my advice is to write him and tell him that you will be delighted to see him when he comes home. Army life is hard, and the boys do not always have time for writing. Of course, I think John has been rather thoughtless in not writing you, but he probably means well and wants to see you. seriously. Be sincere with him and let him know that you have mission, but give him the impression that you have not been sitting at home pining away for him.

EVASION BEATS TOO MUCH FRANKNESS.

Dear Dixie:

I am planning a party and on my list I have the name of a girl who has been a very good friend of mine for a long time. Of course I want her to come to the party, but on the other hand there are circumstances which make the situation very unpleasant. She goes with a boy who is unwelcome in my home, and she goes everywhere with him. She has already announced to some of my friends that she is going to bring him to my party. My family will not allow him in the home because of some things which happened several years ago. I do not care to entertain him either, but what can I do? Please tell me what you think is the best for me to do. HOSTESS.

The only thing you can do is to invite the girl and ask one of the boys whom you have invited to bring her. This can be arranged from the standpoint that your guest list is limited and that you will have to arrange the couples from those on your list. If your friend says anything about it, you will have to tell her that you are only asking your closest friends and that you are sorry that you cannot allow each girl to bring her favorite young man. This will be the most tactful thing for you to do, for you cannot tell the girl that her friend would be an unwelcome guest. You would lose her friendship, so just evade the direct reason for leaving him out.

Dottie Lamour Swims for Beauty

By Ida Jean Kain.

What movie star is it on whose picture the boys depend to cheer them up after a long, hard day of soldiering? None other than Dottie Lamour. Her photograph outnumbers those of the other stars four-to-one with the new Army—and a million soldiers can't be so wrong!

The boys themselves advance the most logical of reasons for their choice. They explain that she is "natural, friendly, and a good sport." Of course, the fact that she is so easy to look at might have something to do with it.

There is no question but that Miss Lamour is one of the screen's loveliest figures. If she hadn't been, the sarong would never have become so famous. And you might take note right here that she is not what you would call ultra-streamlined. She weighs all of 116 pounds for her height of five feet, one inch. But, as Bob Hope once pointed out, her weight is "better grouped" than is usual. Call it grouping or distribution, here are her measurements: Bust, 35 1-2 inches; waist, 25 inches; hips, 36 inches.

It would be nice to be able to assure you that a daily dozen is responsible. But she doesn't like calisthenics—mine, or anybody else's. The difference between Miss Lamour and the average woman who doesn't like exercise is that she gets plenty. She swims at least once every day, the way most people like to take baths.

Before she was ever a screen star, she was a swimming star. At the high school contests, she was a menace to the other participants, and she collected so many medals at the Girl Scout meets that she was finally promoted to the post of life saver to give some of the other girls a chance. As a result, she grew up with a beautiful figure and with a genuine enthusiasm for this sport.

You could manage to swim every day for 15 to 30 minutes, you could afford the same scorn for calisthenics. You would get plenty of exercise for the figure-controlling muscles. You wouldn't have to worry about reducing in some spots and building curves in others. But since all the probabilities are against such a program, you have to choose between exercise and the gradual loss of your figure. Fortunately, just 15 minutes of concentrated specific exercise will work magic.

Dartmouth Grid Team Puzzles Own Coaches

Big Green's Publicity Man Promises Spirited, Hard-Tackling Eleven Will Take Field.

(Editor's Note: Robert (Whitey) Fuller, popular sports publicity director at Dartmouth, is in Atlanta beating the drums for the Big Green's colorful intersectional game with Georgia at Athens Saturday. Hereewith, Mr. Fuller gives briefly and interestingly his impressions of the Dartmouth team and how he views the outlook for Saturday, in an exclusive Constitution story.)

By ROBERT (WHITEY) FULLER, Dartmouth Publicity Director.

Not even Coach Tuss McLaughry could give an outright, simple answer to the question, "How good is the Dartmouth football eleven that will face Georgia at Athens on Saturday?"

If this be treason to say that the head man himself doesn't know, let it be immediately explained that there are two very good reasons why the above can be made as a statement of fact without insubordination being charged.

(1) There are 19 sophomores on the Big Green traveling group, and only four seniors. Like all second-year gridsters from coast to coast and border to border, the Dartmouth sophomores are erratic and unpredictable.

(2) Injuries have repeatedly painted entirely different pictures week by week on the Hanover, N. H., campus to such an extent that Tuss McLaughry and his staff have never been able to start the same eleven men during the schedule.

FINE PROSPECTS.

Rest of Nation Asked to Accept This Backfield

Butts Rates Frankie Best He Has Seen; Thomas Lauds His Ace.

By ROMNEY WHEELER, Associated Press Staff Writer.

Overproduction is the word. Time was when the south's plague was a surplus of cotton, corn and boll weevils. Now it has added an athletic ache—an excess of All-America football talent.

There are just four places in a first-string All-America backfield. And the south this year has four noted claimants, plus an ancestral squirrel gun to back up its nominations.

Consider, for instance, the University of Georgia's ball-of-fire, broken-jaw Frankie Sinkwich. He leads the nation in ball-carrying with 868 yards in eight games, and has pitched passes for nearly 500 more.

"We haven't seen all the backs in the nation," says his coach, Wally Butts, "but we think Sinkwich is the best we've ever seen."

Then there's Steve Lach, Duke's candidate for All-America, rated by conservative Coach Wallace Wade as being as great or greater than any player Duke ever had, and the best defensive halfback in his coaching experience. He has carried the ball 40 times in eight games for 327 yards—an average better than eight yards a clip. Twice he has passed the ball, gaining 79 yards and setting up two Duke touchdowns. His punting has averaged 45.4 yards.

Alabama, producer of many an All-America, is pounding the drums for Halfback Jimmy Nelson, whom Coach Frank Thomas says he'd take over any back in the nation. The big senior from Live Oak, Fla., has gained 311 yards rushing and 331 by passing in eight games, and averaged 40.7 yards punting. He's a threat every time an opponent passes, is credited with five interceptions, including a 53-yard gallop for a touchdown against Georgia.

"Nelson may not break any records as a ball-carrier, passer or punter," observes Thomas, "but he will sure win ball games for you."

Few teams have had a more effective performer than Verner's Bill Dudley. The Bluefield bullet is among the national leaders in total ground gained, with 1,492 yards in eight games—753 rushing and 739 passing. He has returned punts 422 yards and scored 112 points. After the Cavaliers' defeat by Yale—their only setback—the Eli's coach, Spike Nelson, said: "I consider Dudley one of the greatest backs I have ever seen. On the basis of this showing this season, he should have All-America rating."

Puzzled: Where does that leave the rest of the nation's fine backs?

Illinois Ponders Zuppke Successor

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—(P)—Several former Illini gridiron stars were mentioned as possible successors to Bob Zuppke as head Illinois football coach today as the university's board of trustees took cognizance of his surprise resignation and named Doug Mills permanent director of athletics.

Don Peden, who has been highly successful as football coach at Ohio University, was listed as a possible choice. Other former Illini stars mentioned were Burt Ingwersen, present Northwestern line coach; Ray Elliott, now on the Illini coaching staff, and Harold (Red) Grange, most famous star Zuppke ever produced. Chuck Palmer, former Northwestern star, now a Chicago high school coach, also was mentioned as a possible choice.

Majors Convene In Chicago Dec. 9

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(P)—Ford Frick, president of the National League, announced today the senior circuit had waived its right to name the site of the annual major league baseball meetings, and that the National and American Leagues would hold their individual and their joint sessions at Chicago December 9-11. The leagues originally had been scheduled to meet at New York on the same dates. The shift was made, apparently, because of the recent illness of Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis and William H. Hargrave, American League president. Both have their offices at Chicago.

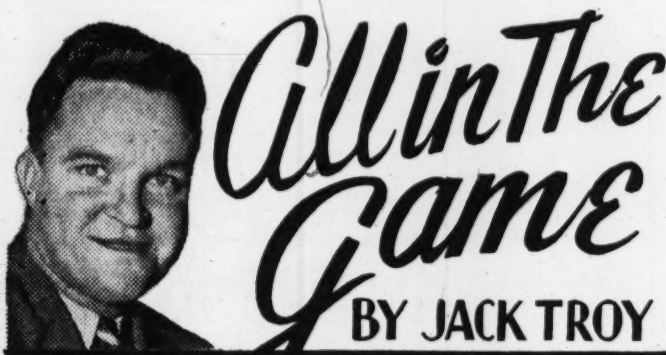

Georgians Shoot Three More Deer

WINDINGSTAIR GAP, Ga., Nov. 18.—Three buck deer, just half the number bagged on the first day's hunt, were taken here in the second day of the second annual Big Game hunt now under way in the great Chattahoochee National Forest.

Dr. G. C. Lyda, of Canton, killed an eight-point buck that weighed 150 pounds. Lester Davis, of Ellijay, bagged a fine 10-pointer weighing 157 pounds.

It remained, however, for Guy Stancil Sr., prominent Gainesville, Ga., sportsman, to bag the finest one of the day. His buck had only nine points, but tilted the scales at 190 pounds.

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

Hunter's Luck CHATTAHOOCHEE NATIONAL FOREST, Ga., Nov. 18.—Only a few chains down the road from Big Stomp Gap is Stover Creek, point of entry for a party of deer hunters chaperoned by G. V. Cunningham, head of the State 4-H Clubs.

Guided by stars and a pencil of light, Mr. Cunningham placed each hunter on his stand before striking out, himself, along the creek to find a desirable stand before day.

As he chose the place he liked and settled back, Mr. Cunningham thought he detected familiar game not far away, and as soon as the early light of morning enabled him to see well, he realized that Dame Fortune had played a prank on him.

It is not permissible to shoot wild turkey in the national forest—only deer and wild hogs may be taken—and the great fowl seemed to realize they were protected.

"I didn't mind not being able to shoot the hens," Mr. Cunningham declared after the end of the day's hunting, "but that old gobbler was downright insulting. He preened and assumed a most arrogant attitude. He'd crane his neck every now and then and give me a cold stare as if to say, 'Well, why don't you do something about it?'"

Mr. Cunningham admitted that temptation was strong to settle with the gobbler, but he resisted it. He got the first deer in the wilderness hunt last year, but got only a long-distance view of one today.

On the other hand, he said he might have got three turkeys with one shot, using a shotgun. But it probably never would have happened if it had been open season on the bronze beauties of the forest.

That often is a hunter's destiny.

Almost Treed Mr. Cunningham had placed this hunter, who has been cunningly named "Deerslayer" by some of the brighter members of the party, in a cove near the stream.

In the middle of a clearing, once used as a home place, there stands a tree whose leaves are the color of burnished gold and give the appearance of a great cone of fire.

Often, in being routed of bed as early as 4 o'clock, I find some consolation in the glories of early morning, and I wondered for a long time what had become of the sun this clear day.

In a mountain cove one is surrounded by great ridges, and it is long after sunrise before the sun actually appears. First the trees along the west side catch the light and have the appearance of a halo. Then, inch by inch, the sun climbs above the eastern ridge and bathes the whole valley in a soft light that accentuates the remarkable variety of autumn colors blended in the leaves of the trees.

It is at such a time that one really appreciates the opportunity of being out in God's great outdoors.

Our reverie suddenly was interrupted. There was a rattling of fallen leaves on the ground and the snapping of a twig. I grabbed my gun and searched the spot for animal life.

A handsome black and white animal came into the open, accompanied by a smell that hardly went with the glory of early morning. For a moment it looked as if I might be treed, but a well-directed rock sent the representative of the skunk family scurrying for cover.

Little did I realize this omen meant I was to be "skunked" at deer hunting on the initial day. It was the only "game" I saw all day and probably vice versa.

Hill Climber Mr. Cecil Holleran, of The Constitution, won the mountain climbing championship. After scaling a ridge that appeared to have most of the height of Pike's Peak, Mr. Holleran discovered an athlete's legs run out after 35. And so he took a nap.

Refreshed, he vainly searched for deer and was thankful that the return trip was all downhill.

Mr. Holleran, returning to his duties after a day in the great open spaces of the Chattahoochee, planned to visit Grant Park and see what a deer actually looks like close up.

Clint Davis, who handles public relations, among other things, for Uncle Sam's forest service, is a diplomat of the first rank. He plans to present Mr. Holleran with an autographed picture of the first deer he (Davis) bags.

Rogers Smart Top prize for smartness goes, for a change, to Kenneth Rogers, the blond blizzard of The Constitution photographic department.

Mr. Rogers, who didn't hunt opening day, made a special trip to Dahlonega, some 20 miles along the winding mountain road from camp, to get special paraphernalia.

His first purchase was a small American flag.

Next he purchased a piece of very red cloth. The

Victory Feast Prepared For Purples Today

Old Profs To Be Guests; Hurricane To Leave For Meridian.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Coach Shorty Doyal's Boys' High footballers, with their third straight G. I. A. A. and city crowns tucked away safely, will eat turkey today because they made Tech High eat crow last Saturday.

The Purple wearers always are given a victory dinner with the once-arrogant gobbler the main course when they subdue the Blacksmiths in the traditional clash, and at 1:30 o'clock today, at the school cafeteria they receive their reward for that 45-0 rout they conjured up last week.

The putting on of the feed bag will be a doubly auspicious occasion today, since five or six one-time Boys' High teachers have been invited by Principal H. O. Smith to be special guests of the school. Some of the ex-profs who will break bread with the gridders can really remember "way back when" since they taught before Shorty Doyal was bequeathed the task of putting the Hurricane on the football map.

The all-conquering Purples hate to be impolite, but they will just have to "eat and run," because at 4:40 o'clock they must be on that train bound for Meridian, Miss., where they are to battle Meridian High Thursday afternoon. The Meridians, who scored 382 points

Buddy Lewis Is Taken By Army

FORT BRAGG, N. C., Nov. 18.—(P)—The public relations office announced that J. K. (Buddy) Lewis, star third baseman and outfielder of the Washington Senators, was inducted into the Army today as a one-year selectee.

He was put through the routine at the Fort Bragg recruit reception center in midafternoon, the office said.

Lewis recently began examinations for enlistment in the Air Corps. Officers did not say what effect his induction as a selectee would have on the outcome of his Air Corps application.

Lewis' home is at Belmont, N. C.

last year, should tax the Purple efforts to the limit, since they were winners in the "Toy Bowl" game and claim the national prep championship.

The Atlanta powerhouse will not be quite up to form against the Mississippians since some of their stars were pretty badly banged up in the bruising fray with the Smithies. Charlie Furch-gott, all-state tackle, bruised a hip and can hardly walk. Quarter-back Jimmy Gordon injured a knee. Center Raymond Smith was the recipient of a back injury, and Comet Clint Castleberry, the team's ace, who was roughed up considerably, is also nursing a hurt knee.

Considine Rates Georgia Good Box Office Team for Bowl Game

DANCE OF THE BOWLS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—The weird dance of the bowls has now taken on a strictly derisive aspect. It is even wilder than a Sioux or Comanche war dance. Stanford had barely fallen for the second time, when the cheering voices of Dick Andrade and Buddy Fogelson came over the long distance phone from Cotton Bowl headquarters at Dallas.

There was even louder cheering at New Orleans and Miami, for Stanford's downfall meant the Rose Bowl had to enter at least one two-time loser in place of an unbeaten western defender. The bowl situation at this November spot might be classified as follows:

East—Duke, Alabama, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Clemson. (The last four only once-beaten.)
Southwest—Texas A. & M., Texas Christian.
Big Six—Missouri.
Far West—Oregon State, Stanford, Washington.

The Bowl leaders are now Texas A. and M., Duke and Duquesne. In the next group we find Fordham and Alabama, although Alabama this week has a dangerous opponent in Red Sanders' Vanderbilt squad. If Vanderbilt can duck by Alabama and Tennessee the Commodore ranking will be high up.

Missouri and Ole Miss are two other fine teams—crowd-pleasing teams—that are as close to the top as paper on the ceiling. Missouri has the edge here with a lone first-game defeat and only Kansas ahead. Looking back over this collection you can understand the feverish activity now taking place among bowl promoters to round up their New Year's show.

The Men of Might

Those who saw Michigan's big, brilliant team take Columbia apart can now understand the power of a Minnesota defense that could keep Westfall and Kuzma away from the Gopher goal. Michigan also has a big, fast line in front of these star backs and that makes Minnesota's performance all the more remarkable. In these days of upsets, overthrows, ups and downs, Minnesota's ability to win 16 straight games against such terrific opposition is another startling addition to her record.

Equally sensational along consistent lines is Texas Aggie's mark of 28 victories in 29 starts. And Frank Leahy's remarkable sweep at Boston College and Notre Dame. Both Minnesota and Texas Aggies belong in two of football's toughest pastures, so far as winning is concerned. When you are meeting the picked teams of the midwest and the southwest you are in a battle from angle to scalp on almost every Saturday.

Minnesota is now only one game away from another flawless year. But this great Minnesota defense must still meet a Wisconsin attack

Sinkwich's Jaw, Butts' Rare Wit Assets to Team

Writer Lines Up Jan. 1 Opponents in Letter to Promoters.

By BOB CONSIDINE.
NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(INS)—Bowl Promoters, Esqs. Everywhere, U. S. A.

Dear Sirs:
Just a note to remind you about the coolie football labor at hand, where to get it, how much it will cost, and how to make the games look like amateur "naturals"—even though they are being played at an unnatural time of year by badly exploited students who deserve a cut of the swag.

Looks as if the Pacific Coast Conference can build a little character this year by nominating Oregon State. The Rose Bowl, as usual, is sold out, so it won't matter that Oregon State hasn't got the patronage that the bigger California schools have. State knocked off Stanford, 10-0, and Washington, 9-6, the two teams which are now tied with State for first place in the conference standings. State lost to Southern Cal and Washington State, but why not give the Beavers a break? They've beaten the two tough ones, and if they get past Oregon. . . Besides, their nomination will show there's no fraternity politics in picking the Rose Bowl home team.

DUKE GOOD.
Duke looks like a good enough foe. Wallace Wade played hard-to-get when he was tapped for bones by a cheaper bowl not long ago. He was in effect making googoo eyes at the Rose Bowl.

His lads will look upon it as an expedition in search of the golden fleece, and see no double entendre in the phrase. That helps. The Blue Devils came away from their last Rose Bowl contest with an empty feeling, thanks to something Doyle Nave and Al Kreuger did to them in the last untempered seconds. Wade himself was somewhat consoled by the $100,000 he brought back to the school.

You Sugar Bowl promoters have good pickings this year and can buy a first-class team for the $75,000 you want in front of those graduate managers of athletics who like to say that the only reason their schools accept bowl bids is "for the good of the boys."

FORDHAM O. K.
Fordham should be one of your teams. You get that New York publicity that way which, of course, is always a telling factor. Fordham's loss to Pitt will be easy to laugh off. See, Pitt was just coming. The material was great at Pitt; it hadn't clicked. Pitt went on to beat Nebraska, which only lost to Minnesota, 9-0, and just think how tough Minnesota is! Etc.

Lemme see, now. Texas A. & M. might go for that dough. Wouldn't be the first time a Texas team risked the wrath of Texas politicians and the "affection" of professional Texans who have affixed themselves to the clubs, by grabbing more dough than Dallas' Cotton Bowl can offer.

If the Aggies stay in their corral, a good home team could be selected from either the Mississippi (see winner of that game on November 29) or Alabama, Georgia or Vanderbilt. Alabama is always good box office.

Georgia has a hilarious coach who also could be brought into town a couple of weeks in advance, and draw a lot of patronage at Rotary lunches. Vanderbilt, the Princeton of the south, has class. Grantland Rice, Vanderbilt '06, would cover the game. The broken cloth was for a head band to hold the flag on high above his hunting cap.

THEY GAVE THEIR HAIR FOR A. & M.—Derace Moser, ace fullback of the Texas A. & M. football team, feels the slick heads of a bunch of cadets whose pre-game enthusiasm cost them their hair. The lads took part in an expedition to Houston last week, intent on extinguishing a Rice Institute pep bonfire. Instead they underwent some enforced barbering at the hands of Rice supporters and returned to the campus here looking like this.

"I listened to the whine of those 30-30s on the first day," Mr. Rogers explained, "and I am sure all the hunters understand about the penalty for firing on the American flag."

Mountain Tragedy Ranger Arthur Woody has often said he favored the bow and "arrar" hunters and was tempted to pay their hunting license fees himself. The idea is that they don't destroy the deer crop.

But Woody didn't realize until Tuesday that at last an archer had hit one of the deer . . . and had left it to die a painful death because it is unlawful to shoot a doe.

Some archer, on the last day of the shoot last week, shot an arrow clear through a small doe and failed to report it upon the pain of a fine and expulsion from camp. The pain-wracked doe lingered on for a whole day. Ranger Woody calculated, and was dead for two days when found on a hillside today.

The arrow was removed intact and is plainly marked. The guilty archer is certain to be found out . . . and, in addition to paying a fine, will be subjected to a certain amount of ridicule and no little criticism in the eyes of true sportsmen. Woody, who has so stoutly backed the archers, is sort of torn by conflicting emotions.

Jaw of Frank Sinkwich, of Georgia, may be the deciding factor here. Great box office, a broken-jawed player.

AND DUQUESNE.
Presuming that you Cotton Bowl people snag the Texas Aggies, you could get unbeaten Duquesne with little more prize than a sweet smile, or Missouri. Missouri must get past only Kansas to win the Big Six title. It's always a good selling point to bring in a conference winner. Then again, Duquesne, with its season finished, will be one of the precious few unbeaten teams in the country.

Ted Husing selects the Orange Bowl teams and isn't hampered by politicians trying to ram a home-state alma mater into the bowl. What hampers him chiefly in his dealings with various fonts of college amateurism is that he has only about $50,000 to whack up.

Dartmouth Will Present Spirited Team

since the third tilt of the campaign, a blow that has been far more serious to the Indians than the average football far even in New England realizes. Wolfe, when at top speed, is as good as they come. Kast was hurt at Ithaca and his loss was apparent, during the second half when he was Green fell off markedly without his services. Chick Camp, senior tackle, was lost at Princeton for the year when a broken collar bone ended his career.

And so has gone. No attempt is made to call for the crying towel in Dartmouth's behalf, because that isn't the intent here.

BIG GREEN READY.
Actually, the Big Green will come to Athens prepared and ready to put up a whale of a ball game. Spectators will be impressed with the fight and spirit of the team, no matter what the odds, for the Indians have not won the reputation of one of the most colorful teams in its section of the nation playing tag football and tiddy-winks. As a matter of fact, little Ted Arice, 150 pounds of speed spread over 5 feet 6 inches, is a show all by himself.

The Dartmouth team will tackle well, block hard, and Georgia will know that it has been in a real struggle. If only the Dartmouths had the poise and the background of play to be steadier, the outlook would be something else again.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

It's taken a long time for Tech's Johnny Bosch to get in shape this season, but at long last it looks as if the little veteran tailback is going to close his career in brilliant style.

A knee injury, suffered in the first game of the season against Chattanooga, kept Johnny on the sidelines and hampered his conditioning. Since the opening battle he has been unable to play much or very effectively while in there.

He started the Duke game, played good ball and looked as if he had fully recovered. But, rushed and tackled hard on a pass, his knee was reinjured and he hasn't been effective since.

IN OLD FORM.

However, in yesterday's scrimmage against the Florida contest, Bosch was running and passing in his old-time style and railbirds smiled knowingly at one another as if to say, "Johnny's ready again."

It's probably a good thing as Bobby Sheldon, his understudy at tailback, was in sweat clothes covering from bruises received in the Alabama game. Sheldon has shouldered a big load this season and has been taking a terrific beating.

In fact, the whole team is battered and bruised. Coach Bill Alexander said he believed the game against Alabama was the hardest his team had ever played, as far as contact is concerned.

There was nothing dirty about it, but the boys just went out there and played it hard. No roughing penalties were called.

Another hard scrimmage is scheduled for the Yellow Jackets today. The varsity will get a stiff dose of pass defense Thursday before enroute for more use Saturday for Jacksonville where it will work out Friday and spend Friday night.

STIFF DEFENSE.

Warned by scouts that the 'Gators have one of the stiffest defenses in the Southeastern conference, Tech is polishing its passing attack for more use Saturday than ever before this season. Only Georgia, with Sinkwich, has been able to penetrate the Florida line enough to score this season.

Bosch's return to passing form came some neat receiving by Jack Hancock, junior wingback from Jacksonville, and Charlie Burroughs made the Tech aerial game look good during yesterday's scrimmage.

Before the scrimmage linemen were giving a stiff workout on the bucking frame while backs blocked the dummy and then went through some "live-meat" tackling.

N. G. I. C. Crown Still Undetermined

The official N. G. I. C. championship for 1941 will be determined at a meeting of coaches and directors here on Monday, December 1, it was announced by conference officials last night.

Previous reports had stated that the Russell Wildcats, with their record of six wins, one loss and a tie, were the top team, but further reports show that Marietta High, undefeated, with two more conference games remaining, and possibly Decatur still may have title claims.

Broyles and Olsen Set N. G. I. C. Scoring Pace

Russell's Ratteree Next; Decatur Eleven Leads Conference in Scoring; Marietta Blue Devils Unbeaten.

By HENRY DAILEY.

With reports in from all but three N. G. I. C. teams, Decatur's two rolling backfield aces, Frank Broyles and George "Swede" Olsen, are at the head of the list in the conference individual scoring. Broyles, who runs at halfback for the Bulldogs, has amassed a total of 50 points in six games. Olsen, who plays fullback when his team has the ball, sits on the bench when he hasn't, is right on his teammate's heels with 49 markers.

Russell's ace, Foster Ratteree, and Ecco Shaw, Gainesville star, are deadlocked for third place with 42 points each.

As a unit, the powerful Decatur outfit is also far ahead of the field. Smokey Joe Martin's gang has rolled up 175 points against six conference foes to go well out in front of the second-place Russell Wildcats, who have pushed across 129 points against seven opponents.

Marietta's Blue Devils, undefeated in four conference frays, have the most impressive defensive record. Only Canton and West Fulton have been successful in crossing the Blue Devils' goal while the Mariettas have racked up 95 points on the opposition.

These records cover games played through November 7. Statistics from LaGrange High, Newnan High and Canton High are not included.

Educator Says More Training Needed in U. S.

Ignorance Costs Nation Plenty, Tigert Tells Fertilizer Men.

Ignorance is the "most expensive article" the nation is paying for today, Dr. John Tigert, president of the University of Florida, told 400 delegates to the National Fertilizer Association meeting here yesterday as he urged a new emphasis in certain fields to fill "great gaps" in our educational system.

Warning against "a recrudescence of medieval tyranny, racial intolerance, and national selfishness," the educator urged a program to include better vocational training for the population, education "to understand and enjoy life" and more adult education.

Tigert, who spent seven years as United States commissioner of education, would be "disfranchising" said of 76,000,000 adults in the nation only 2,000,000 have graduated from college, 10,000,000 from high school, and 32,000,000 from elementary school.

"Is it any wonder that so many people don't make a living and don't know how to participate in their responsibility of citizenship?" he asked.

Strong Challenge.

"Never in all history has there been a challenge so strong, so definite and so vital to the American people," he said, adding that "we can meet it only by an immediate and effective program of general education among our adult citizens."

The only alternative, but one which is "unthinkable," Tigert declared, would be "disfranchisement of thousands of citizens in this country who have reached maturity in ignorance."

His speech, on "Education for Defense in a Changing World," came on the second day of the year's convention.

Earlier, John A. Miller, president of the association, discussed the need for greater food production for national defense, and said the fertilizer industry "is ready and willing to put its shoulder to the wheel."

Jarnigan Speaks.

Dr. Milton P. Jarnigan, professor and head of the department of animal husbandry, University of Georgia, said livestock has become more important than cotton to the southeast.

Dr. Jarnigan's speech, "The increasing importance of livestock in the defense effort," he said, "many more millions of acres of improved pasture are needed."

I. W. Duggan, director of the southern division of the AAA, told the convention that small farmers can aid in defense by producing as much of their own food as possible at home. This will put more and better foods on the farm table, a vital factor in the defense effort, he said.

Pacific Weather Reports Stopped

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 18.—(P)—Ship reports which give detailed information on weather conditions and ship locations in various parts of the Pacific ocean were missing today for the first time in recent years from the weather maps issued by the Sacramento and other local meteorological bureaus.

Meteorologist E. H. Fletcher said the omission had been noted by his office, but that no advice had been received as to the cause or whether the reports were to be absent permanently.

Unprecedented Offer

Made for Hotz Slayer

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Nov. 18.—(P)—The Germans tonight published the name of the man sought as actual killer of Lieutenant Colonel Paul Friedrich Hotz, German commandant at Nantes, and made the unprecedented offer to reward an informer by freeing any war prisoner the informer may name.

The man sought is Gilbert Brustlein, 22, the first anti-Nazi assassin in France ever identified, described as "an exceptionally dangerous evil-doer." A financial reward also will be paid, the German authorities said.

The offer was made along with the second announcement in 11 days of arrests in Paris of members of a nation-wide anti-Nazi terrorist ring. The ring is charged with responsibility for all types of sabotage and with assassination of two of the five German Army men in France whose death at the hands of terrorists has been announced.

Clear Labor Policy Lacking, Willkie Asserts

Confusion Is Result, He Says, Criticizing Administration.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie charged the Roosevelt administration tonight with failure to announce a clear and open policy for labor.

In a speech prepared for a dinner at which he was presented The Churchman award for 1941 "for the promotion of goodwill and better understanding among all peoples," he said:

"At the very moment when it is vitally important that our unity of purpose be made clear in order to deal most effectively with the foreign threat, we are weakened in the eyes of the totalitarian world by strife at home."

Confusion of all parties has resulted from the government's "lack of a consistent and recognizable policy toward labor," Willkie said. As an example, he cited the President's reply to President John L. Lewis, of the CIO United Mine Workers that the government never would force the closed shop.

Coupled with this statement, the speaker continued, were two unofficial offers which Willkie said Philip Murray, CIO president, asserted the President made to him: to write personal letters to 2,500 nonunion miners asking them to join as "a patriotic duty" and the President's offer to obtain for the mine workers a maintenance of membership clause.

"Now I submit," Willkie went on, "that whichever side of the argument you may be on those three statements taken in conjunction show complete inconsistency and vacillation in the administration's policy toward labor and industry. This is a time for playing back-door politics. This is no time for taking up each case on its merits and laying down different principles each time in the childish hope that all will come out right in the end."

Cancer Surgeon Slain; Patient Held

DURHAM, N. C., Nov. 18.—(P)—Dr. Robert Rudolph Jones Jr., 39, widely known for work in cancer and plastic surgery, was shot to death today in the private diagnostic clinic at Duke hospital.

Police arrested a man they booked as John S. Baldwin, of Whiteville, who, they said, shot Dr. Jones in the head five times with a pistol. Baldwin was described by Safety Director Roy Bishop as a former patient of Dr. Jones.

Officers said they had been unable to determine a motive for the slaying.

Clashes Mark Operation of Picketed Pits

By The Associated Press. This was the picture of the coal fields yesterday as the strike called in "captive" mines by the United Mine Workers of America (CIO) entered its third day.

Charleston, W. Va.—More commercial miners were reported joining a sympathy walkout and William Blizard, UMW official, predicted all the 550 mines, commercial and "captive," in West Virginia, employing about 105,000 miners, would be closed "within 48 hours."

Gary, W. Va.—Blood flowed here as pickets clashed with miners attempting to continue work. Two men were shot and slightly wounded, several were injured in fist fights, and officials of an independent union wired President Roosevelt for "immediate protection."

About 175 state police were ordered to the Gary area to keep peace. Despite the fights, 163 of a normal day shift of 220 went to work.

Fayette County, Pennsylvania—Strikers and non-strikers swung fists and bludgeoned each other at the entrance to a United States Steel mine. The fight began when 50 non-strikers started through a picket line of 100 UMW members at the H. C. Frick Coke Company's Red Lion mine. At Frick's Red Lion mine, state police said, pickets had automobiles loaded with non-strikers but there was no disorder. About 31 of a crew of 326 went to work there.

Sheriff Charles T. Frock reported he had received a petition from employees of the Grady stone captive mine of the Frick Company, asking for "adequate protection" in their planned return to work.

Johnstown, Pa.—City police reported 200 men walked through a line of 100 pickets and entered the Rosedale mine of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Monday, police reported 325 had gone to work.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The H. C. Frick Coke Company reported about 3,400 of the 13,600 miners employed in its 14 Fayette county mines went to work. The UMW challenged the estimate, saying "only a trickle" of men entered the pits. Spread of sympathy strikes to 13 additional commercial mines brought the total affected to 18 in western and central Pennsylvania, cutting off daily production of approximately 50,000 tons.

Logan County, West Virginia—Approximately 1,500 men walked out of three Logan county commercial mines in sympathy with the captive miners.

Louisville, Ky.—Reports from Kentucky coal fields indicated approximately 12,800 miners would be idle today and the total might reach 21,000 during the day. Approximately 6,800 already had stopped work at two captive mines and union and company representatives said 14,200 employed at commercial mines were expected to remain away from the workings in sympathy with the captive mine stand.

ALUMINUM SHIPPED. VALDOSTA, Ga., Nov. 18.—Under orders from J. Y. Dost, of Atlanta, state procurement officer, the Valdosta fire department has shipped 11,250 pounds of aluminum to smelters in Philadelphia. This scrap material was collected in Valdosta and the surrounding section and concentrated here for shipment to some smelting center.

Aged Pair Burned As Home Is Razed

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. CANTON, Ga., Nov. 18.—An aged couple narrowly escaped death near here last night when their home was burned in a fire that destroyed their home. Mr. Nevil Bishop, age 90, and Mrs. Bishop, age 80, received burns which were described as being not serious when their home, four miles east of Canton, burned last night.

Mr. Bishop, Mrs. Bishop's brother, was also present at the midnight fire and aided in carrying many articles from the burning home.

The blaze destroyed about $70 in money and many presents presented to the couple, who celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary four years ago.

The fire was discovered about midnight near the kitchen door and its origin is unknown.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishop are prominent Cherokee county citizens.

Elephant Case Suspect Stays In Jail Here

Mistaken Identity, He Says, En Route To Face Charge.

Elvin Bogler Michael, an employee of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, arrested Monday in St. Petersburg, Fla., after two Gastonia, N. C., men had pointed him out as the one they allegedly saw feeding capsules to several of the circus' elephants at Charlotte, N. C., was lodged at police headquarters here last night by Captain S. W. Roper, who said Michael was en route to Charlotte to face a warrant charging him with "malicious injury to valuable property."

Michael denied knowing anything about the fatal poisoning of 11 of the circus' elephants, and said his arrest was a case of "mistaken identity."

Captain Roper, a member of the Georgia State Patrol, went to St. Petersburg several days ago with Assistant Police Chief G. Neal Ellis and Ed Mullins, a Burns detective, to aid in the investigation launched after an autopsy showed that the elephants had died from arsenic poison.

Ten of the elephants died in Atlanta, while the 11th died several days later in Augusta, Ga.

Welchell Bill Makes Strike Call Treason

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. WASHINGTON, Nov. 18.—Representative Frank Welchell, of Georgia, today introduced in the house a bill making it treason for anyone to call or abet in a strike affecting a defense industry.

The measure would also make it a treasonable action for any manufacturer of defense materials to fail to co-operate with the defense program.

TRULY ONE OF AMERICA'S REALLY FINE BEERS

Frontier U

Joy Thinks She Is About To Crash;
Makes Her Secretary Bail Out

---By---
OREN ARNOLD

SYNOPSIS. Polly McMurray is a real "girl of the golden west." Raven-haired and bronzed from her life in the open, she is starting her senior year at Frontier University. On arriving at the region's largest and most famous college, she meets a handsome stranger who introduces himself as Ken Palmer, son of Kenyon Thomas Palmer, Ph.D., the new president of Frontier, a struggling little girls' school on the outskirts of Phoenix, Arizona. Ken has been granted special permission to become the only male student at Frontier. He has just received a telegram announcing that Joy Kathryn Boone, wealthy and beautiful girl, has decided to transfer to Frontier and is arriving in her private plane. Joy Boone is an American legend. Everybody has heard of her. She flew the Atlantic as a high school senior. She owned a New York night club, and her name and picture are familiar sights in newspapers from Maine to California. The telegram announcing her arrival at Frontier instructed the college officials to have a servant dressed in Indian attire meet her at the university private landing field. But there is no private landing field, and Polly decides to do something about it. She recruits Ken and her brother Ward to help. Joy runs into a storm within sight of her destination.

INSTALLMENT IV. "You must write to your friends immediately, dear," she yelled, struggling for control. "My, it's colder up here! Alfred will want to hear. In fact—Look, Joy! I saw it! I saw the white F again. With a white arrow pointing from it!"

"What direction? Quick!" "Oh! Miss Carlson, wide-eyed, didn't answer for a long moment. Then she just shook her head, gripping her seat in unceasing tension. They had been shrieking in each other's ears, above the motor.

Joy understood. North up here might be any way. Even she, a skilled pilot, couldn't be sure; and the climb and the storm would surely confuse Betty. She said no more. The clouds were a billowy sea now, and the wind was snatching the ship as if it were a fragile thing of pasteboard.

She leveled off when she thought it safe to do so and tried circling again. She looked at her fuel gauge. Her heart all but froze within her! "I've got to go back!" she whispered. "It's the last chance!" The forced climb had almost emptied her tanks. Time aloft now would be measured in minutes, Joy knew. Presently—all too soon—her motor would begin to sputter, sputter, sputter. They would begin that helpless sinking as the gasoline supply ended. Arbitrarily she coasted slowly back down. It was as if she had been stunting, showing off, having fun as Joy Boone was wont to do. Miss Carlson looked at her in fresh alarm.

"Joy!" "Sit tight, Tootsy! And—strap that parachute on!"

"JOY!" She fairly screamed it now. "You heard me! Do as I say! Quick!"

"But you—you!" "Put yours on! You'll have to go first. Don't you see? The ship would foul us!"

"There's only mountains, and the thorniest cactus plants and rocks on the valley. Or—or—oh Joy! I won't leave you here!"

"I'll say you won't! Aunt Tootsy, the gasoline's nearly gone. Where could I possibly land? If we drift any lower it will be too dangerous for the 'chutes! Now remember—jump, and pull the ring. I've told you how easy it is. Don't be afraid! Kiss me and go!"

"Yes! GO!"

It was as near to grandeur as Bettina Carlson ever achieved, this moment. She was fearful of jumping herself, yes, but she was more fearful of refusing. She knew Joy would never go first. Never! To stay would mean death for both, so—

Courageously she opened the tiny cabin door and threw herself out, gripping the parachute ring. The formless mystery of the storm engulfed her.

Joy Boone was sobbing. She glanced once more at her fuel gauge. If only—if only—! The moment stretched. She drifted down farther through the whining, menacing wind and ice and water. The monoplane trembled. Then, almost miraculously, the driving storm ceased in an instant. She glanced out.

Her heart leaped in terror. To her right was a sheer rock cliff which plainly had broken the force of the storm.

But, worse, ahead of her a few hundred yards and to her left as well loomed an extension of that same rock wall. Flying blindly, she had trapped herself in a box canyon! It yawned now like a veritable chasm of death.

When they started up the steep slope toward Ho-Ho-Kam bridge, which was a natural lookout point over Frontier University, Polly McMurray and her two men companions made an odd little parade.

She had left her horse Pintado hitched below. She climbed in cowboy boots, spurs clinking. Behind her, Ken Palmer labored with a two-gallon bucket of white paint. And third came Pedro, the Mexican gardener, comic looking with a rake and two brooms.

"You have to—stretch—for it!" Polly breathed, happily, to the two men. She was lifting herself by sheer strength over the boulders. It was a zealous climb.

"I shall die quite dead," Ken Palmer avowed. "This is not what I came to college to do!"

"Oh, you don't like mountain climbing? You're a softie?" "No. I— But he had suddenly looked up at her, and saw the way she dimpled. He had to grin back. "Yes. Yes, Miss McMurray. You distract one! I am supposed to be a city chap. A cowgirl has led me astray!"

"Feel no alarm," Pedro will chaperone, and protect you!"

"Of course, I mean—" The young man swallowed. Polly had spoken that last ever—so—seriously. "Please forgive me! I was trying feebly to—to tease—and I am not good at social—"

Polly laughed gaily, then sat down to rest with them from the climb. They were half way or so. "All you need is a sister or two, Mr. Man! My brother Ward would have known better. He leads a dog's life. But you're all right, Ken, really. I may—all you Ken, mayn't I?"

He warmed to her, formality gone again. "Of course! If I may call you—call you—"

I Let Thomas do my 'hair-worrying' says Benny Baker

Well Known Stage and Screen Comedian

"AFTER I outgrew stage-fright, I started having attacks of 'hair-fright' every time I stepped out on the stage and saw those beautiful heads of skin in the 'bald-headed row'. I decided to do everything possible to save my hair, so I consulted Thomas. Maybe Thomas is still worried about my hair—but personally I'm now a most happy and contented little fellow. My scalp feels perfect and my hair looks like it has a new lease on life," says Benny Baker.

So why don't you "lend-lease" your scalp problems to Thomas as a hair defense measure? Come in and see for yourself how Thomas has helped thousands of others during the past 20 years. Let a Thomas expert show you exactly how Thomas treatment removes dandruff and allays the scalp itch which dandruff may cause. Advice and consultation is given in private—without charge or obligation.

Martha Raye, Cantor Cut Up On Air Tonight

Eddie Mohammed Returns to N. Y. for 'Time To Smile' Show.

Eddie "Mohammed" Cantor will make a hejira from Boston to New York for his "Time To Smile" program with Martha Raye, a guest star tonight at 9 p. m. over WSB.

Last week's broadcast from the Bean City convinced the prophet of pun that it was better to run into New York each week for his broadcasts. To move Eddie's mountainous radio cast and trappings to the city housing his new musical comedy, "Banjo-Eyes," prior to its Broadway opening, proved too much for even that merry Mohammed.

Boisterous will be the word for Miss Raye's late-afternoon "Time To Smile" program, for little Martha was never known to be one of the mousey type, while to Gordon silence was never golden.

Assisting Cantor with his laugh output between commercials will be Harry von Zell, Dinah Shore, will be featured in songs accompanied by the Edgar "Cookie" Fairchild orchestra and chorus.

Thin Man Stars In Holiday Play

"Thanksgiving With Blackmail" instead of turkey will be dished up for Nick and Nora during Adventures of the Thing Man, tonight at 8 p. m. over the NBC-Red network and WSB, with Claudia Morgan and Les Damon in the lead roles.

Selection of the story for this date illustrated Director Himan Brown's policy of making this series as topical as a Metropolitan newspaper. Like a good city editor, he keeps a "futures book" which reminds him well in advance of holidays, conventions, ship launchings, cornerstone layings or sensational trials due to occur in New York—or elsewhere if the Thin Man happens to be taking a trip.

Author Dashiell Hammett then weaves his detective stories around events that "break" near the day of a broadcast.

Thanksgiving Story Set on Big Town

"Plum Pudding and Mince Pie," a Thanksgiving story by Alice Duer Miller, is dramatized by Edward G. Robinson on his "Big Town" program tonight at 8 p. m. over WGST. The short story originally appeared in Woman's Home Companion and was chosen one of the ten best of the year.

As the program opens, Steve Wilson (Robinson) finds one of his brothers at odds with his wife and a second brother has quarreled with his fiancée. Even Steve and his favorite reporter, Lorelei Kilbourne (Ona Munson) have had a misunderstanding. Steve's mother, however, is equal to the unhappy situation and devises a plan to effect reconciliations all around. Crane Wilbur made the radio adaptation. Leith Stevens' orchestra provides the musical background.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Previous to 20th, m. favors appointments, meetings, financial affairs, public matters. After 19th, m. favors attending to old duties or matters that require patience or perseverance.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Before 11:41, m. favors travel, quick decisions and changes. After 11:41 a. m. favors general business interests and for making harmonious arrangements with others.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 2:14 p. m. favors general business activities, dealings with executives and officials and seeking favors. Between 2:14 p. m. and 12:01 p. m. discretion should be used around liquids and firearms.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—An excellent day to stick to routine. Previous to 9:48 a. m. and after 7 p. m. do not allow yourself to be coaxed into things that are against your better judgment.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—More success will be attained today through sticking to routine. Be deliberate in what you do—do not undertake affairs impulsively. The best aspects of the day operate in the period previous to 2 p. m.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Previous to 1:48 p. m. is the better portion of the day, when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. After 1:48 p. m. and until 8:30 p. m. care should be used to hold peace and be careful in taking on new obligations.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—After 1 p. m. favors active work of all kinds, ideas that require energy and enthusiasm, literary and publishing matters. The best vibrations of the day operate between noon and 7 p. m.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Before 4:27 p. m. is an excellent time for making contacts with important people and any clever ideas or propositions that you want to further should be followed up. A good day for romantic interests.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Before 1:10 p. m.

OPPORTUNIST—Pretty Betty Winkler got her first job in radio thanks to a bad case of laryngitis. Her high-pitched, squeaky voice pleased the auditioning director and he hired her on the spot. Now she stars in Columbia network's "The Man I Married."

Kate Smith broke up rehearsal last Friday by suddenly burlesquing a song—doing it in a Jerry Colonna style. This unexpected bit of comedy by their star amused the musicians no end.

Gains Reported By Methodists In Atlanta Area

Annual North Georgia District Conference Begins Tonight.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.
Atlanta Methodism as embraced in the Atlanta East and Atlanta West districts will today make reports to the North Georgia conference showing a year of great activity with satisfactory results in evangelism, finances, church building, liquidation of indebtedness, and notable improvement in morale.

Dr. Edward G. Mackay is district superintendent in charge of the Atlanta East district, and Dr. Wallace Rogers of the Atlanta West district. Both of the district superintendents emphasize the hearty co-operation with pastoral leaders of the Methodist men and women, and young people, in promoting the church work, and attribute the districts' successful year to that co-operation.

New building programs and debt-paying efforts this year in the Atlanta area total more than $1,000,000. Church membership accessions reach a new high, in that more than 1,200 persons were admitted to membership on profession of faith and giving, the Atlanta districts' churches a net gain in membership for the year of some 1,600 communicants. Similar advances are reported in the work done by the Women's Society for Christian Service and the Board of Religious Education.

Wells District Leader.
Jere Wells is district lay leader for the Atlanta East district, with Dr. J. C. Wardlaw and Judge Clarence Bell as associates, while Walter L. Richard is district lay leader for the Atlanta West district, with James F. Cox and Judge J. J. Daniel as associates. Mrs. R. H. McDougall is district secretary for the women's work in the East district, and Mrs. T. J. Hamby for the West district. Lester Rumble is chairman of the Board of Religious Education, and the Rev. W. S. Norton executive secretary and director of curricula.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, president of the annual conference, met yesterday with his cabinet of district superintendents, giving attention to the pastor all appointments for the coming year.

The annual conference session begins tonight at 7:30, at Wesley Memorial church. At the worship service special music for the occasion will be furnished by the Atlanta First Methodist church choir, directed by Harry Armstrong. Bishop W. C. Martin, of Omaha, is to preach on the theme, "Perilous Times Demand Great Faith." Bishop Moore, assisted by the district superintendents, will administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. Formal opening and organization of the business session of the conference is set for 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

To Disband Association.
President Nath Thompson, of the Widows' and Orphans' Aid Association, has called a special meeting of that association for 6:30 tonight, at Wesley Memorial church. He states that a resolution will be presented at the meeting directing that the association be disbanded, and all assets be distributed among paid-up members.

Seven young ministers will apply for admission on trial this week. They are the Rev. Henry Walker, of Bishop; the Rev. Bascomb Cosby Barrett, of Dalton; the Rev. John C. Moore, of Culverton; the Rev. Jack William Nichols, of Covington, and the Rev. William Hoyt Henderson, and James Monroe Moore, students at Emory University.

Could Nero Have Fiddled With Stomach Ulcer Pains?

The historic fiddling of Nero after his feasting could hardly have been possible if he suffered after-eating pains. Don't neglect your suffering. Try a 25c box of Udo's for relief of ulcer and stomach pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloating and other conditions caused by excess acid. Tablets must be taken with meals. At drug stores everywhere.—(adv.)

RIDING THE CIRCUIT AT THE METHODIST CONFERENCE

Darling, I am growing old! And I don't mean maybe. For 34 years now I have been jolting down these Riding the Circuit paragraphs for The Constitution, and here I go again. My faithful horse, Pegasus, also is showing signs of wear and tear. But the late Clark Howell said he wanted me to keep it up for 100 years. Think of it—66 years to go. If I can get a good quaff of water from the Fountain of Youth and nobody feeds Pegasus arsenic, we'll make it. After the first 100 years the going is easier, I understand. It's harder to keep up with these streamlined preachers in these streamlined days. How am I doing? Excuse our dust.

Says "Raise Hell."
The Governor during his first term visited Floyd county, where taxpayers complained their roads were not getting a square deal. In an address to the citizens the Governor said, "Boys, I suggest that you raise hell with the highway commission."

I have been considering the Governor's philosophy of "raising hell" in church and conference affairs. For instance, there are 19 men in the conference who judge themselves to be good timber for making district superintendents, and there are 211 men who think they ought to get better salaries. And 47 men think they should be sent to First church instead of Punkin' Vine chapel. I am just wondering what would happen if all those men were to go into the cabinet meeting, seize the cabinet members' coat tails and proceed to "raise hell" about it. I don't profess to know what would happen, but I am dead certain something would happen. Selah!

Burton Ranks High.
Rush Burton, a conference lay member from the Athens-Elberton district, ranks high in the business and religious enterprises in Georgia. Since 1906 he has been connected with the Lavonia Times. In his church work Burton has been a Sunday school teacher for 25 years, is chairman of the board of stewards. He likes to sing and attends all-day singings, where he tries out his voice.

"He Voted for Willkie."
Bishop Arthur Moore tells of receiving a letter requesting and insisting on the removal of a preacher. The letter writer admitted the excellent virtues and powers of the preacher, but insisted and persisted in the request that he be moved. And the one and only complaint against the preacher was couched in the words "he voted for Willkie."

That's silly item No. 18. "Heavenly days!" Puck surely knew what he was talking about when he made that remark.

T. F. Landers, 43, Succumbs In Hapeville

War Department Worker Had Suffered Heart Ailment.

T. F. Landers, 43, employee of the War Department, died yesterday at his residence, 3312 Myrtle street, Hapeville. He had suffered a heart ailment for some time.

He was a member of the Sylvan Hills Methodist church and a veteran of the World War. Survivors include his wife, four daughters, Miss Lillian Landers, Mrs. George Goings, of Spring Garden, Ala.; Mrs. John Garrett, of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Miss Rosa Landers, of Lindale; five brothers, James E., of Hill City; Jack, of Gadsden, Ala.; Walter, of Rome; Bill, of Madison, Ala., and H. G., of Hills Park.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning at the Sylvan Hills Methodist church, with the Rev. Joseph E. Crowley, of Miami, Fla., and the Rev. G. W. Hamilton officiating. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

White Sea Action Of Subs Reported

BERLIN, Wednesday, Nov. 19.—(P)—German submarines are operating in the White sea, German commentators declared today, emphasizing assertions that this is on the route of any United States merchantman bound for Archangel, Russia.

The White sea is an arm of the Arctic, and is largely frozen over in winter. The Dienst said winter had not hindered German submarines there, however.

The Dienst said British ships were the victims of the latest submarine sinkings, which it placed in the White sea. It did not elaborate on what might be expected to ensue should armed American merchantmen enter those waters.

Draft Board on Strike Until Lewis Stops His

FORT MYERS, Fla., Nov. 18.—(P)—The three-man Lee county draft board tonight telegraphed President Roosevelt that no more induction papers for selectees would be signed "as long as John L. Lewis dictates the labor policy of the United States."

"We're striking," said W. B. Seabrook, a member of the board.

Lack of Quorum Threatens Regents' Parley

By The Associated Press.
There appeared some likelihood last night that a quorum might not be present at today's special Board of Regents meeting when action is scheduled on a program intended to preserve the accredited standing of the 16 units of the State University System.

The Governor told reporters that he did not know whether he would be able to attend. Four regents have advised the state office they could not be present, and John S. Peters, of Manchester, said he doubted that he could be on hand.

Secretary L. R. Seibert, of the regents, said that seven members constituted a quorum of the 16-man board.

The special session was called by Chairman Sandy Beaver to act on a program drawn up by him and other members of a committee appointed by the board to deal with the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools which has investigated charges of political interference in the university system.

Beaver and other regents conferred here last night, but declined to say anything about the quorum possibility.

Vice Chairman E. Ormonde Hunter, of Savannah, wired that he could not attend "due to important matters that I am trying to wind up before receiving orders for active service." He holds a major's commission in the air corps and expects to be called to active duty soon.

Secretary Seibert also announced that Regents John S. Cumming, of Donaldsonville; Julian Strickland, of Valdosta, and K. S. Varn, of Waresboro, had advised that press of business or other matters would prevent them from attending.
